20-ton drug bust on boats

VICTORIAN DAYS May 18-21
VICTORIA, B.C.

CYMBAL OF SUCCESS in any Victoria Day parade is the high school band. Thirty of them, mostly American and including four from California and one from Nevada, blew their horns and bashed their drums with extra zest Monday, as perfect spring weather enhanced the colorful spectacle. Outnumbered but not outclassed were the musicians from Reynolds secondary school, pictured here striding down Douglas and nearing the reviewing stand at city hall. Police arrest 17

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

At least 17 persons were arrested and 20 tons of high-grade Colombian marijuana with a street value of $32 million seized near Tofino early today.

It is being described as the biggest drug bust in Canadian history.

The seizure is more than half as large again as the raid police made last July in an isolated cove in the same general area and which resulted in the arrest of 15 persons.

RCMP Superintendent T.M. Gardiner said the raid occurred at 6:30 a.m. as 50 heavily-armed RCMP officers swooped down on a about two dozen persons unloading the drug from two boats at the head of Sydney Inlet, 32 kilometres north of Tofino.

Gardiner said all but two of the group scattered into the dense bush when they spotted police.

Fifteen were later picked up and police and Canadian Armed Forces personnel have launched an air and ground search for four to six others who fled.

The two boats, identified as the 168-foot Samarkanda and the 55-foot Whitecap, have been seized by customs officers.

Gardiner said the Samarkanda, believed to be of Colombian registry, is beached at the head of the inlet. The Whitecap, anchored nearby, is an American vessel registered in Seattle.

Gardiner said the raid was the culmination of an international investigation that involved members of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency and saw the use of Canadian military planes tracking the movements of the two vessels.

Lt. Dick Pepper, Canadian Forces spokesman, said Argus and Tracker aircraft out of Comox carried out surveillance over the weekend.

Gardiner said 50 RCMP officers were deployed at strategic points along the narrow inlet earlier in the

Gold price tops $265

LONDON (AP) — The gold rush continued on the bullion markets today, with the price reaching a new peak of $265.375 U.S. a troy ounce at mid-morning — a rise of $10 in a week and nearly $19 since the start of the month.

Both London and Zurich bullion prices were $265.375, topping the records set only the day before of $263.25 in London and $262.52 in Zurich.

The gold rush has been spurred by alarm over inflation, reduced supplies of the metal and the dire effects the oil crisis may have on currencies and world economies.

Holiday accidents claim 29

Traffic crashes, drownings and fires claimed 29 lives in B.C. during the three-day holiday weekend.

On Vancouver Island a three-year-old boy drowned while swimming in the Chemainus River and a fisherman is missing and presumed drowned when his boat capsized on Fourth Lake in the Nanaimo Lakes chain.

The worst accidents were two on the mainland which claimed nine lives.

Three persons died in fires.

RCMP at Duncan identified Rory Lee Green of Crofton as the boy lost in the Chemainus River where he was swimming with his family at Hell's Gate. He was caught by the current and pulled into deep water.

Wayne McCluskey, 25, of Nanaimo, is missing after the boat he was fishing from turned over, spilling him and companion Brian Balfe, also of Nanaimo.

Balfe told police the accident happened about 8 p.m. Monday at the somewhat isolated lake. Both men tried to swim ashore, but McCluskey did not make it. Divers searched for the body today.

At Tezzeron Lake near Fort St. James three unidentified men are thought to have drowned after a capsized canoe was found on the lake early Monday. The three had gone fishing Sunday night.

Two men drowned Monday morning in a pickup truck which rolled into Davis Lake, 30 kilometres north of Mission, apparenty after its brakes failed at a provincial parksite. The truck went into 12 metres of water.

Five persons died Sunday when their car went off a corner at the foot of a hill on Highway 16 near Burns Lake. They were Melvin Roy Minger, 19; Keith Russell Shields, 20; Ronald Gordon Borstel, 18; Timothy Luke Unruh, 19, an Paul Anthony Clark, 18, all of Burns Lake.

At Kimberley RCMP said a car driven by Janet Lee Roddick, 19, of Calgary, was in head-on collision with one driven by James Drabble, 32, of Cranbrook, killing both drivers and passengers Robert Bruce Bellat, and Randolph James Strongward, both of Calgary, who were with Roddick.

A two-car crash 13 kilometres east of Sicamous killed an unidentified Calgary resident and injured nine others.

Victoria fishboat seized

Two Victoria-based fishermen were to appear in U.S. federal court at Port Angeles today charged with illegal fishing in American waters.

Hoadley Donald Marcus, master of the trawler, and deckhand Rick Rebbit, were aboard Monday afternoon when challenged by the cutter Campbell, and towed to Port Angeles.

The arrest of the 11-metre trawler Pat T2 off Cape Flattery Monday was the first of its kind this year within the 200-mile limit, said Coast Guard Lieut. Jim Spence.

Voter turnout 'quite normal'

For the second time in 12 days Greater Victoria voters headed for the polls today, this time to cast their ballots in the federal election.

Early reports less than two hours after the polls opened at 9 a.m. indicated a steady voter turnout, but no heavy pressure on polling stations and — at least in the urban areas — few serious problems.

"So far everything seems to be quite normal," said Eleanor Allan, returning officer for the Victoria riding.

But some voters apparently assumed polling stations would open an hour earlier, at 8 a.m., as they had for the recent provincial election.

She said it's not necessary for voters to bring enumeration slips or voters' lists, although these do save time.

Several clerks are on duty at the entrance to each station. Voters can give their address to these officials, and be directed to the appropriate poll.

In Esquimalt-Saanich constituency the headache for officials today was caused largely by rural voters, phoning up to ask where they should vote.

5000 riot in San Francisco over verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police used tear gas to break up a mob of about 5,000 angry demonstrators, many of them homosexual, who stormed city hall and set police cars on fire after a jury ruled the killings of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk were manslaughter — not murder. (See pictures on page 46).

Dozens were injured Monday night and damage was estimated at $200,000. Police arrested 20 persons, mostly for looting.

Early today, the city was quiet. Fifteen police officers stood in front of city hall, where the grounds were still littered with debris and broken glass. Charred patrol cars had been towed away.

The city's gay community had expected the jury to find former supervisor Dan White guilty of murder in last fall's city hall killings. A verdict of first-degree murder, sought by the prosecution, might have brought the death penalty. Under the verdict of voluntary manslaughter, White might be free in less than five years.

After the verdict was announced, the demonstrators gathered and marched on city hall.

They used iron bars to smash the doors of the ornate domed building, set cars on fire and rampaged through the streets around city hall. Chanting, they pelted the building with rocks, tomatoes and eggs.

Milk, the first avowed homosexual elected to the board of supervisors, would have been 49 today.

White admitted shooting Moscone and Milk in their offices on Nov. 27, after trying to convince Moscone to reinstate him to a supervisor's seat he had resigned. Milk opposed reinstatement.

White's defence was mental illness.

White bowed his head when the second verdict, for Milk's death, was read. There was a collective gasp in the packed 92-seat courtroom.

And outside it, reaction was swift.

Many in the city's large homosexual community, estimated at one-sixth of its 660,000 residents, marched to City Hall. The demonstration began peacefully, with shrill whistles and angry chants. Some protesters carried placards reading, "Avenge Harvey Milk."

Then, as the sun set, demonstrators reached City Hall — and smashed windows, chanted, and pelted the ornate domed structure with rocks, tomatoes and eggs.

Several people were injured by flying glass when the doors were smashed, and police used the chemical Mace to control the crowd. Tear-gas canisters left a pall of acrid mist over the melee.

Supervisor Carol Ruth Silver, inside City Hall at a board meeting when the mob arrived, was struck in the face by a rock. Her injuries were not serious.

When the verdicts were announced, Mayor Dianne Feinstein issued a statement saying they were "very hard to handle."

"As I look at the law, this was a murder — two murders."

Moscone was shot twice in the body and twice in the head at close range with a .38-calibre revolver. Milk was shot a moment later, three times in the body and twice in the head at close range.

District Attorney Joseph Freitas said he was "very, very disappointed."

"It was a sad way to end a tragic chapter in our city but I hope it's ended."

During the trial, the defence called four psychiatrists and a psychologist who testified White had suffered bouts of depression since childhood. They diagnosed him as suffering manic depression and said they did not believe he premeditated the killings.

Tornadoes rip through Sask.

REGINA (CP) — Tornadoes ripped through parts of southern Saskatchewan Monday, tearing apart a farmer's barn, ripping a roof of a grain elevator but causing no casualties.

Warren Denzin, who farms about 30 kilometres north of Regina, said in an interview Monday night he saw a tornado tear apart a neighbor's home and barn.

"It drove his farm truck across the yard and right into the creek and there's four-by-six timbers driven into the ground that you can't pull out by hand."

Denzin said no one was in the building and the neighbor, working in a nearby field on his tractor, escaped injury.

In Regina, a tornado ripped part of the roof off a Saskatchewan Wheat Pool elevator near the downtown area. Bill Parr, a city resident who was in the oil refinery area, said the tornado "looked almost like the cloud had broken."

"It looked like a big oil fire burning from the ground, that's how dark it was, you know. It was just really black and it came right down on to the ground."

Earlier today, the federal environment department lifted a severe weather watch-warning for the Brandon region in southwestern Manitoba. But a tornado warning issued Monday night for the Regina and Moose Mountain areas of southeastern Saskatchewan remains in effect.

The federal environment department ended the warning for the eastern half of the Brandon region at 4 a.m. EDT. The department ended the warning for the region's western half three hours earlier.

The warning for southeastern Saskatchewan was issued at 9 p.m. EDT after three tornadoes were sighted)n the Regina area. The severe weather watch for the Brandon area was issued two hours later.

Ray Clyde of the Regina weather office said the three tornadoes were sighted in the two hours before the tornado warning was issued.

The first tornado was sighted about 30 kilometres north of Regina. Another was reported to the east of the provincial capital. The third moved right over the city but did not touch down.

Train loses brakes

SEATTLE (AP) — A monorail train which apparently lost its brakes crashed into an abutment at the elevated rail line's north terminal Monday, injuring about 14 persons, police said.

There were no serious injuries immediately reported after the train, a major tour attraction, rammed a steel girder abutment at about 60 kilometres an hour. Officials said the train had been carrying about 25 people.

The monorail's hydraulic brakes, plus three backup braking systems, failed as the elevated train rounded the last curve before arriving at the Seattle Centre, said John Tyers, a spokesman for the centre.

The monorail driver, identified as David Carter, yelled twice to the passengers, telling them the brakes had failed and to brace themselves, Tyers said. Carter then jumped from his driver's station, grabbed a young boy standing in the aisle and fell to the floor as the train struck the girder.

weekend. They observed the vessels pass by and late Monday noted the Samarkanda got into difficulty, having run aground at the shallow head of the inlet.

Early in the morning police began to make their move boarding the RCMP vessels Harvison and Dufferin and a Zodiac assault craft.

Meantime, the Armed Forces ready duty destroyer Qu'Appelle with 300 servicemen aboard left Esquimalt Harbor at 1 a.m. and arrived at the mouth of the inlet at dawn where it set up a blockade.

Gardiner said about 500 bales of marijuana had been unloaded and stashed in the bush when police arrived on the scene.

Scores more bales were still in the Samarkanda's hold.

No one was injured in the raid which Gardiner said went off with lightning speed.

The search for the other suspects who fled into the bush was continuing at noon.

Gardiner said two helicopters and five tracking dog teams are in the area assisting an army of police and military searchers.

In the raid last July 12 police seized 13½ tons of marijuana worth about $20 million.

The drug had been stashed in bush at Obstruction Island only a few kilometres away.

Gardiner was unable to say if there is any connection between the two.

"It's still to early to tell," he said.

Victoria in secret love scandal?

LONDON (WP) — Nineteenth century rumors of romance between widowed Queen Victoria and her Scottish servant, John Brown, have been revived by plans for a book and a television series on the dowager queen and her gillie.

The curator of the obscure Museum of Scottish Tartans in remote Comrie, Scotland, Micheil MacDonald, claims to have found from 15 years of research evidence that Queen Victoria secretly married Brown and bore him a child who lived as a recluse in Paris until the age of 90.

Brown, a Scottish highlander who was then 21, six years younger than Victoria, was hired as a servant, or gillie in Scot dialect, by the queen and her husband, Prince Albert, when they bought Balmoral Castle in Scotland in the mid-1800s. When Prince Albert later died, according to MacDonald, Queen Victoria turned in her grief and uncertainty about running the British empire to Brown.

MacDonald says he has evidence that a lady-in-waiting saw Brown emerging from the queen's bedroom at 4 a.m. once and was later told by Queen Victoria that what she saw was proper. He also has a tape recording of a witness who claims to have the death-bed confession of a minister who said he married the queen and Brown.

MacDonald claims that Brown helped Queen Victoria rule the empire as a secret adviser who, according to a medium contacted by the queen, was speaking for the departed Prince Albert. As the queen's closest servant after Albert's death, Brown, a large, handsome reassuring man, attended to her around the clock, and occupied a room next to hers until his own death in 1883, according to MacDonald.

MacDonald is keeping secret details of his evidence, names of his sources, and the identity of the child he said was born to the Queen and Brown because he has not yet finished his book on the affair or found a publisher. He also has served as a consultant to producers of a dramatic series on the relationship between Queen Victoria and John Brown planned by the Commercial Television Company in Scotland.

All of this has so alarmed Buckingham Palace that it took the trouble Monday to issue an official denial that Queen Victoria either married John Brown or had a child by him. A spokesman said there was no evidence to support this theory in palace records, to which MacDonald had access during his research.

Queen Victoria's prize-winning biographer, Lady Longford, said that rumors of a romantic relationship between Brown and the queen, which were rife in London after Prince Albert's death in the 1860s, have never been substantiated.

There is no dispute that John Brown was a favorite servant of Victoria's and their relationship has been the subject of historic speculation for nearly a century. There is little doubt of the market for MacDonald's book, if he lines up a publisher, or for the television series, if it is completed as planned for screening here this fall.

Damage heavy in Bali quake

JAKARTA (AP) — An earthquake rocked Bali and the neighboring Indonesian island of Lombok, injuring four persons on Lombok, official said. Hundreds of houses and other buildings were slightly damaged on Lombok.

No casualties were reported on Bali and damage there was limited to broken glass, they said.

Scientists said the quake hit Monday night in the Lombok Straits southeast of Bali and registered 6.3 on the Richter scale. Fishermen at sea reported huge waves touched off by the quake.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 6 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

U.S. puts curbs on drug ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drug makers must not make advertising claims broader than the routine usage information the government permits them to print on the labels of over-the-counter products, the Federal Trade Commission said today.

The proposed FTC rule, to be followed by 60 days of public hearings, could have a significant impact on the multibillion-dollar advertising campaigns used by drug companies each year.

In effect, the commission said drug companies would make additional, "objectionable" claims unless they are forced to stick with government-approved language in their advertisements.

Americans spend about $3.8 billion annually on over-the-counter drugs.

Advertised blandishments such as "for the relief of upset stomach" would be considered too broad and vague under the proposed rule. In that case, the FTC said, companies would have to revert to language specifically approved by the Food and Drug Administration, words such as "heartburn" or "acid indigestion."

"Advertising claims about the uses of over-the-counter drugs must not differ from what the Food and Drug Administration permits on drug labels," the FTC staff said.

The proposed new rule reads in part:

"In an ad for an over-the-counter drug, you can make express or implied" claims about the purpose of the drug "only if the FDA would allow you to make the same claims on the label of that drug.

"This means you cannot make claims the FDA has specifically disapproved."

The industry can propose new terms to the FDA for its approval, however.

The FTC said it would bank on the FDA-approved language because "it is unlikely that drug advertising would consistently use words (in its advertising) that convey only the meaning FDA would want communicated and not objectionable additional meanings."

The staff said, "It is not uncommon for advertisements to make different claims than those which the FDA would allow in labeling."

Weston asked $2M donation kept quiet

The son of late Canadian imndustrialist Garfield Weston, confirmed Monday that his father secretly bequeathed $2.4 million to London's St. Paul's Cathedral. "Father wanted to be associated with the cathedral's restoration because it is, of course, the centre of the (Anglican) church in the Commonwealth," Garry Weston said. "But he wanted his gift to remain anonymous in his lifetime."

The Dutch Supreme Court ruled today that millionaire Pieter Menten should stand trial again on charges of complicity in a Second World War massacre of 20 to 30 Polish Jews. The verdict was greeted with shouts of joy from the public benches which were jammed by more than 100 onlookers, many of them members of the Second World War Dutch Resistance movement. Menten, a veteran art dealer who will be 80 on Saturday, was not in court to hear the verdict.

Some financial help from estranged husband Mick is on the way for Bianca Jagger to pay for medical repairs after a roller-skating accident. Jagger's lawyers said he was in Britain Monday, but Mrs. Jagger was present when a Los Angeles judge ordered the rock star to pay his wife $12,000 in temporary support and up to $2,500 for her medical bills. Superior Court Judge Harry Shafer also ruled Monday that Jagger must deposit $35,000 to be held for paying Mrs. Jagger's legal fees as the couple's divorce case proceeds.

There are no gulfs between the young — wherever they live — that can't be bridged these days with a big rock beat. Elton John proved that Monday in Leningrad, driving 3,000 Soviet youths into a frenzy of cheering and screaming that would have been right at home in London, New York or Hollywood.

While actresses pleaded with a Congressional committee in Washington to authorize a medal for John Wayne, the actor was reported taking short walks and answering fan mail at UCLA Medical Centre. A hospital spokesman said Monday that Wayne, who will be 72 Saturday, was in good spirits, recovering strength after his third cancer operation and resting comfortably at night. There was still no word when the Oscar-winning actor would begin an experimental cancer therapy program, for which he volunteered. Wayne underwent his third cancer operation to remove a malignancy in the intestine May 2, 15 days after his stomach was removed. He also underwent the removal of a cancerous lung 15 years ago, and open heart surgery last year. In Washington, D.C., some of Wayne's acting friends, including Maureen O'Hara and Elizabeth Taylor, were successfully urging Congress to give Wayne a special gold medal.

And, finally, on the scrounge was Prince Charles who had to borrow a pound from Earl Mountbatten of Burma before he could declare his great uncle's country home open to the public. Lord Mountbatten, 78, forced to open the house to the public because of mounting inflation, said the prince must pay admission like anyone else. "Have you got a quid (pound)?" he asked the prince when inviting him to declare his mansion, Broadlands, near Southampton, open to the public. The prince fumbled in his pockets but in the best royal tradition had to admit he was penniless. The earl lent him a pound and the prince was able to pay his admission.

They have to be moved

It's easy to sympathize with View Royal residents who view with horror the possibility their area might become the site for the oil tanks that now litter the Victoria harbor waterfront.

The residents' spokesman, Joe Sutherland, a former Saanich fire chief, knows better than most the tremendous danger tank farms pose if a fire gets started in them.

Sutherland may be right that the site in View Royal along the Esquimalt harbor shoreline is not the best one. Maybe there are better alternatives within the capital region.

His idea, however, that perhaps the tank farms should stay along the Victoria shoreline can only be termed absurd. Sutherland quotes a number of statistics to back up his point. He states that Victoria is essentially an industrial harbor, with only 11 per cent of its shoreline devoted to residential uses.

He describes the Esquimalt harbor shoreline, however, as being 75 per cent in its natural state and 35 per cent residential. (The fact that those figures add up to 110 per cent is not explained.)

Over-all, Sutherland's statistics are probably quite correct — at least, if one ignores all the naval base shoreline of Esquimalt harbor and considers all the commercial land along Victoria harbor as "industrial."

In looking at the suitability of the various shorelines for a tank farm, however, more consideration must be given to the specific sites proposed than to the over-all development of miles of shoreline. Looking at the sites now utilized in Victoria Harbor, especially those in James Bay, it is impossible to argue convincingly that the tanks should remain there.

They are not, as Sutherland describes them, located on "an isolated industrial reserve." Rather they are, in some cases, just across the street from closely-packed residential and commercial developments. A fire last year at an adjacent boat-building yard showed Victorians that James Bay could be only yards away from disaster in the case of a tank farm fire.

View Royal residents could make some convincing arguments why the regional board should go on looking for a site until it has found one better than the Esquimalt harbor location. They could make some even better arguments why the regional board should chip in a large share of the extra fire protection costs that would be needed if the tank farms are located in that area.

However, they will make no headway in their fight if they continue to argue that the tank farms should remain in their present location where they are an obvious danger to everything around them.

Fang and feather

Your mail never arrives, or comes with teeth marks around the edges? Aunt Martha's promised special fruit cake never arrived for your birthday?

Chances are the squirrels got it, or the birds are to blame. The first explanation was offered a New Brunswick woman who posted a parcel of cookies to a friend.

She received a few remnants of packaging and a covering letter from the post office in Toronto which explained that squirrels had eaten the cookies, which she thought a euphemistic term for employee theft.

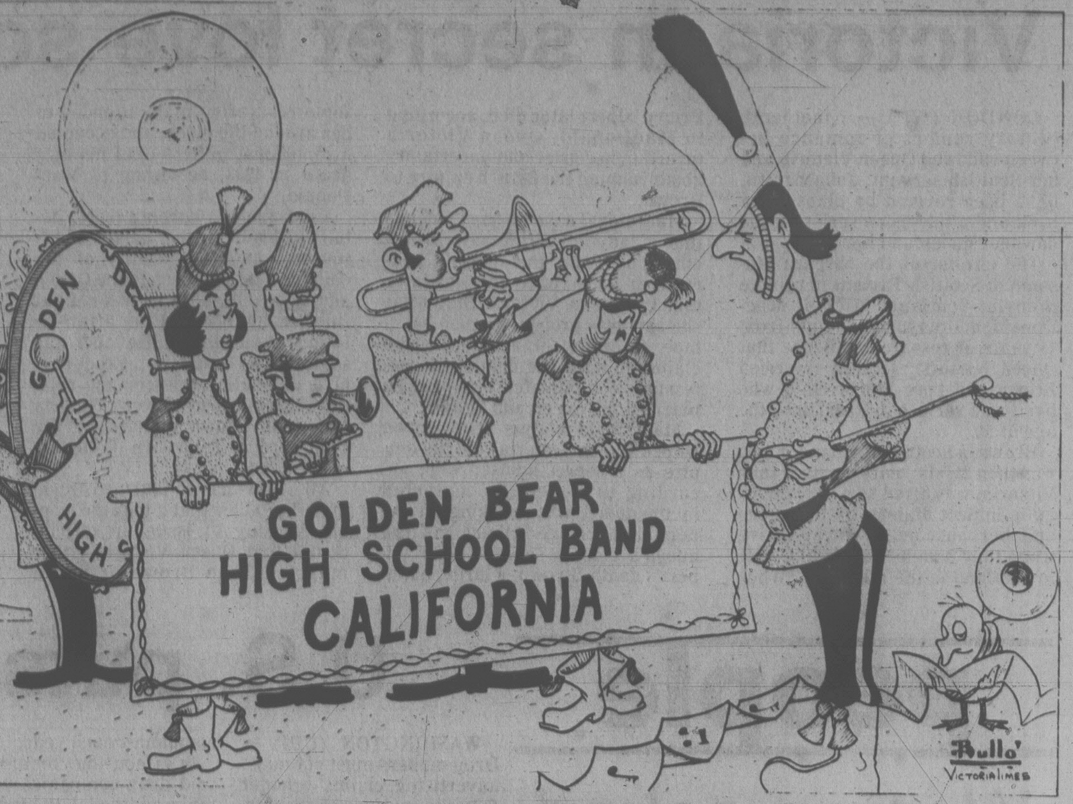
An official spokesman denied the post office has problems with squirrels, but a mail handler at one of the buildings in the massive Gateway sorting facility in Toronto confirmed that squirrels are often caught scampering among the parcels.

"Any package that contains chocolates, nuts or anything like that, they'll sniff the packages and then they chew them open and tear them open and get what they want," said Gabriel O'Rielly.

Up in Campbell River, it's not rain or snow that keeps a family from getting its mail but a starling which attacks only postman Chris Lindquist. It nests over the front door of the J.H. Hupka residence.

"Everytime I'd come to the front door to deliver the mail, the thing would attack me. I don't like being crapped on or having a bird fluttering in my eyes, so I stopped delivering the mail."

Remember, be sure you have sufficient postage on your parcels. And if it's going to Toronto, add a few cookies for the squirrels. For the Hupkas in Campbell River, a little birdseed may get your letter to its destination.



"Remember . . . everyone takes home a can of gasoline."

Emphasize positive

As a member of the Lambrick Park Secondary School staff I would like to object to the form of journalism your paper advocates. I am referring to the picture of graffitti which appeared in your paper on the front page, May 8. The graffitti splattered all over our school are not something of which we are proud.

It is also not laughable, which your paper seemed to imply, nor is it suitable material for a newspaper to publicize. This type of journalism only encourages more damage to the school.

You ought to publicize more positive events. I noticed that you didn't have time to photograph our students who came third and sixth in the province in the Canadian math contest, or who participated in the milk run and in various other positive events in the community. Secondly, the graduating class of Lambrick Park secondary school had no part in this deplorable activity and I suggest you get your facts straight before maligning a group of students.

Why must you give publicity to such deplorable activities when there are so many good events and outstanding students in our schools? The press shares much responsibility for educating the public. Such misrepresentation of the facts is surely a form of propaganda and not newspaper reporting. — Mrs. A. Barclay, 4335 Blenkinsop Road.

Horror stories

When recently in Hong Kong, I arranged for samples to be airmailed to Victoria. Documents arrived but, over three weeks later, no shipment. I am told it is held up in customs and that, because of the way the system operates, such delays are normal.

I propose to protest to Ottawa. It would help if I could have other documented stories of delays caused by customs from businesses in town. Some, I am told, are quite horrendous. I would appreciate letters to me at the address below: Kay Lines, President, Taiga Management, 829 Broughton Street, Victoria, B.C. V8W 1E5.

A true Socred

Brian Smith of Oak Bay has proven himself a true Socred. Although the people of Victoria democratically elected two MLAs, with a substantial majority, to represent them in the legislature, Smith of Oak Bay has decided that he and Hugh Curtis of Saanich will do all the planning and direction for the revitalization of Victoria. It must give the cabinet minister a warm feeling to be invited down by the backbencher to this strange territory that neither represents.

To call in Bawlf to complete the work is a bit much. When a man and his "visions" are roundly and soundly defeated at the polls, the will of the people should be respected.

Let the continuation of this politically neutral task lie with the members duly elected to do the job. — W.N. Green, 1232 Oxford Street.

Don't hitchhike

I am sorry to see that there are still some young girls thumbing rides on the streets of Victoria.

I hope that they realize that this is a dangerous practice and apt to get them into great difficulties.

I hope we will soon see the time when it is illegal both to hitchhike and to pick up hitchhikers. — M. Fraser, Lakeshore Road, Kelowna.

No matter what happens, there's going to be sadness

By Richard Gwyn

OTTAWA — A friend who voted last week in the advance poll, admits that, after dithering for days he only made up his mind how to vote while driving to the polling station. "Half-an-hour later," he added, "I wished I'd voted the other way."

Today, many of us will have to cope with the "Dewey Syndrome." This phrase was coined to describe the 1948 U.S. presidential election in which, though all the polls made Republican Thomas Dewey and easy winner, millions of Americans changed their minds literally as they voted, and made Democrat Harry Truman their president.

Our burden, though, will be a Double Dewey Syndrome. We'll vacillate between, both "It's time for a change" and "We cannot isolate Quebec," and between "We can't stand Trudeau any longer," and "Can we stand Clark?"

Afterwards, many will suffer post electoral tristesse. Any result will leave many unhappy, the losers aside. After a Clark victory, even some Conservatives will wonder if they paid too high a price to be rid of Trudeau. After a Liberal victory, even some Liberals (nervously) may mutter that they didn't, really, want Trudeau back for four more years.

Polarization

To heighten this schizophrenia, everyone knows full well that no matter which party wins, the country will lose by polarization. We'll encumber ourselves with, to over-simplify, either a Conservative "English" government or a Liberal "French" one. We'll be, as we've not been since the 1917 election, a nation without a national government.

These frustrations and self-doubts and worries are the reasons why, at the last minute, the character of this campaign has changed dramatically. We've known about these electoral permutations for months. Now they're real.

Seven weeks of apathy has turned, abruptly, to a few days of anxious anticipation. Gallup has found that 41 per cent of Canadians now are "very interested" in the election as against 35 per cent during the 1974 campaign. This interest is in the actual electoral result, and in its consequences, as opposed to the interminable campaign, now thankfully over.

The what ifs? can be spun out almost to infinity.

What if Trudeau loses by only a few seats (five or fewer, say), and tries to stay in office as he has hinted he may do? Would the NDP clamber back into its 1972-74 bed with the Liberals, or shiver, bravely but ineffectually, in the opposition darkness?

What if Clark wins and has to govern with few, or no, Quebec MPs? Would Rene Levesque, after weeping crocodile tears on election night at Trudeau's "rejection" by English-Canada, promptly call his referendum?

What if Trudeau loses definitively, but continues as opposition leader? Would Liberals, who can as easily survive without power as can fish without water try to throw Trudeau overboard for John Turner before Clark could call a snap, "run-off" election to win himself a majority?

Amid all these permutations, one is constant — polarization is inevitable.

TRUDEAU
. . . he has Quebec

Clark will do well to win three seats among the 75 in Quebec; Trudeau may win as few as half-a-dozen among the 77 in the west.

It'll be 1917 again. Then, Wilfrid Laurier tried to rally the entire nation to him. English Canada looked the other way. Only his own Quebecers followed Laurier.

In part, this analogy is apt. For the first time since 1917, anglophone voters, most particularly those in Ontario, seem prepared to accept Quebec's political isolation as a worthwhile price to pay for changing a government. Both sides, their consciences untroubled, seem ready to go their own political way.

Yet Quebecers will not be voting against Clark, who simply hasn't penetrated their consciousness, but for one of their own — as once did the west for John Diefenbaker and Nova Scotia for Robert Stanfield.

Similarly, English-Canadians will not be voting against Trudeau as a francophone, if they actually do so, but as a leader who has outstayed his time. Trudeau's failure to sell national unity as an issue means less that voters discount the issue itself than that they discount Trudeau's ability to solve it. To reassure English-Canadian consciences, Claude Ryan has emerged as an alternative savior of Confederation; his election as Quebec Liberal Leader last spring coincided, as could not have been a coincidence, with Trudeau's downturn in his popularity fever charts.

If he is re-elected, Trudeau would have to try to play the part of a "pan-Canadian" prime minister with an even smaller supporting cast than he commands today — 50 to 60 anglophone MPs, say, and even fewer "name" anglophone ministers than he already has.

Clark's difficulties would be starker. He would have to overcome both the lack in his cabinet of Quebec MPs, as much in quality as in quantity and the post-Louis Riel century of Quebec mistrust of the Conservative party.

Yet if Clark does demonstrate that an "English" government can treat Quebec as sensitively as any predecessor, he will have laid to rest Confederation's last bogey-man — Quebec's fear that, as a minority, it will in the end always be outvoted, and overlooked.

To do this will be difficult for Clark. He has promised to appoint Quebec senators to his cabinet. He has promised "highprofile" civil service appointments — the head of the Privy Council and the governor of the Bank of Canada are two francophone firsts that Clark may achieve. Yet no amount of goodwill at the top can replace the decision-making influence of powerful, elected ministers. And Clark's offhand dismissal of the right of Quebecers to self-determination — a putdown of their collective pride — shows his lack of feel for Quebec's political pulse.

Let's turn to the personality What Ifs.

Defeat will not affect NDP leader Ed Broadbent personally. The NDP wears its defeats like badges of honor. Yet Broadbent, who believes in the NDP-union alliance as the party's foundation stone, will have to answer to those who regard it as a millstone about the party's neck.

During the campaign, Canadian Labor Congress president Dennis McDermott warned unionists that if they failed to deliver to the NDP, "The CLC will be shown up as just a collection of individual unions, without any coherence and without any political clout." The unions haven't, it seems clear, delivered; they have left themselves, perhaps for ever, without political clout.

If Trudeau wins, one of his most influential aides is certain that he will "remain as prime minister for most of his (four-year) term, and then decide whether to run again." Thus, Trudeau may seek, in 1983, say, to become the first prime minister to win five successive elections.

If Trudeau loses, the same authoritative source is certain, "he will remain as opposition leader through the referendum, and then leave on his own timing. Anyone who believes the Liberals would dump their leader doesn't know Liberals." Turner, in other words, had better hang on to his legal shingle.

If Trudeau goes, the Liberal party could go with him. Like an iceberg, still majestic but suddenly sucked by ocean currents into the Gulf Stream, it could, abruptly, dissolve.

The dissolution of a party that has governed Canada for virtually the past half-century seems unimaginable. Yet, between the NDP and the Conservatives, both rooted in "natural" constituencies of social democrats and of conservatives, the Liberals always have occupied an unstable, and unnatural, middle.

The Liberal iceberg towers up upon twin foundations. Quebec. Patronage.

Quebec is as rouge as ever. Trudeau may win 65 of the 75 seats there. Quebec always has gone Liberal, though, not just because the party was so deeply rooted there as because it alone could offer Quebecers their essential entry point into English Canada. Here, today, is the vital difference.

In the past, Liberal governments lead Quebec into a pan-Canadian partnership; today, Trudeau may lead Quebec into isolation.

The morning after the election, Quebecers may ask themselves whether to be a Liberal is worth the price of being alone. Mind you, if Trudeau wins the question answers itself.

Patronage is both the cause of power, and its effect. This link is ready to snap. For the first time in the 20th century, the Liberals are out of power in every province. In the west, not a single Liberal provincial member remains, while in B.C., the Liberal vote has dropped to the level of the Rhinoceros Party (less than one per cent). In the far east, in Newfoundland, the NDP may displace the Liberals as the official opposition in the next election.

At least until tonight, Ottawa remains to the Liberals. The city and the Liberals have become virtually synonymous because, by possessing power, the Liberals have possessed the patronage that attracted to them many of the best and brightest of Canada's post-war generations, who then paid their dues by keeping the Liberals in power.

Most of those who came to Ottawa to do good for the Liberal party have stayed on to do well for themselves. The head of the Canadian transport commission. The head of the National Capital Commission. The head of the Canadian Film Development Corporation. The vice-chairman of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission. The head of the International Development Research Agency. Senators and judges and commissioners and directors beyond counting. Two dozen ex-ministerial aides now stand on the top rungs of the civil service.

CLARK
. . . he has the west

A Conservative interregnum of only a single term of office would not convince Upwardly Mobile Canada to jump off the Liberal ladder. The parachuting would begin only after the start of a second Conservative term.

Mind you, beneath the Liberal iceberg there is a third, vital, support: The right leader at the right time. In 1958, it was a Nobel Peace Prize winner, the late Leaster Pearson. In 1968, it was a Philosopher-King, Pierre Trudeau. In 1980, it may be the best of McMillan Binch, John Turner.

Clark's future, if he loses, is the easiest to identify. He won't have one. The famous Conservative circular firing squads, at present shooting upwards, will turn inwards at Clark.

If Clark wins, he's determined to alter Canada's political topography by holding office for at least two terms. He plans to make sweeping changes in the structure of cabinet and of the civil service, and to effect a "fundamental change in attitude" to keep politicians in touch with their political constituencies and on top of their civil servants.

For Trudeau, and for Clark to a lesser extent, defeat or victory could have far larger consequences than the predictable personal and political ones. Either may be able to write an entire chapter in the history books.

During the next couple of years, the crisis of Confederation may solve itself. The evidence this will happen accumulates. A senior Quebec minister has resigned because he became convinced "the referendum now is lost." In English Canada, bilingualism has become a source of pride rather than a burden — the 2,000 students in Calgary in immersion courses, for example. One other leader may be lucky enough to be in power just at the time when Canadians settle their differences by themselves.

The morning after

If this happens while Clark is in office, the credit he would be able to claim would be limited. Trudeau's halo would be incomparably brighter. Yet he is in double jeopardy. If, while Trudeau is out of office, the Confederation war ends anyway, historians are bound to wonder how much of the battle that Trudeau has been waging against Levesque these past 11 years has been a phoney one.

These are questions for the morning after the election night before. The immediate question facing us is more urgent. Do we vote for "a priceless asset of the industrialized world" even though he zapped us with controls after telling us "Zap. You're frozen," or do we turn our backs upon the last decade and turn toward whatever it is Clark means, if indeed he means anything, by "a new direction, a new beginning."

Some Canadians will vote with their eyes shut. Some will hurry home afterwards for a slug of scotch. Many, the morning-after, will feel sad at whatever result it is that they've helped bring about.

That's what you get for living in a democracy. That's the reason, though, why today's election suddenly has become interesting.

Japan moves to bolster armed forces

By MARK GAYN

TOKYO — Before he became prime minister last last year, Masayoshi Ohira was regarded by fellow-conservatives as a dove. He was also known as a man who, before crossing a bridge, tested every stone in it. Increasingly, as hawks in the ruling Liberal Democratic party pressed for a better and bigger defence, Ohira stood aloof.

The news today is that he is no longer a dove. Again and again in the past three months, Ohira has come out for more muscle for Japan's small — 180,000 man — defence force.

There were good and pressing reasons why this Buddha-like politician decided to climb off the fence, where he has sat for so long with other doves. The fact is that the map of east Asia is changing rapidly and every change sends a new wave of alarm through the rulers and the public alike.

In fact, the men who govern Japan were totally unprepared for all that has happened since last fall. When they signed their treaty of peace and friendship with China, they knew the Russians would be furious, but they still felt they were contributing to peace and stability. But, alas, it did not quite turn out that way.

Moscow's angers have not been soothed and the relations with Japan have not been worse in a decade. Then the Chinese made the government here look bad by striking at Vietnam. And when the Soviets began their war of nerves against China, the people who suffered worst were the men who rule Japan.

Soviet warships — including the cruiser Minsk, one of the most powerful men-of-war afloat — sailed south through the Sea of Japan and the Tsushima Strait, which many Japanese have always regarded as the closest thing to domestic waters. Soviet spy-in-the-sky planes flew along the edge of Japan and into the East China Sea. Russian warships were seen in the superb American-built naval base of Cam Ranh in Vietnam.

Suddenly the Japanese saw Soviet naval might astride their vital oil and trading sea lanes — and in a position to isolate this vulnerable nation.

There were other nightmares. For three decades, Japan has felt itself reasonably secure. The U.S. Seventh Fleet was nearby to protect the sea approaches to Japan. And under the 1951 security treaty, this country was sheltered under the U.S. nuclear umbrella. When there were wars, in Korea and Vietnam, Japan did not feel threatened. It merely made money by filling American military orders.

But that blissful era is now gone. The Japanese are no longer sure the Americans would fire their nukes to protect Japan from the Russians. And, unhappily, the Japanese suddenly find themselves drawn into the dangerous and complex power game in East Asia.

But even at this point, Japan is not entirely defenceless. It is light years away from the armaments of Russia or American or even China. But many in the West might be surprised to learn that, with an expenditure of $9.6 billion in the 1978-79 fiscal year, Japan already has one of the six largest defence budgets in the world. It does not mean that the military establishment here is large. It does not even mean that the Japanese could beat off an invasion. But Japan has moved a long way since the day General Douglas MacArthur, with his own hand, wrote into the Japanese draft constitution a pledge to never but never have armed forces.

Ten years ago, the Japanese decided to keep defence spending below 1 per cent of the Gross National Product, the total of all the goods and services produced. But the GNP has been growing at a breath-taking rate and the defence establishment therefore has not hungered for money.

Between 1970 and 1978, the military spending has been increasing by an average of 17 per cent a year. And now one hears such comments as, "Why do we have to keep it below 1 per cent of the GNP? Why not raise it to 1.2 or even 1.5 per cent? We could easily afford it — and we need stronger defences."

It is a vicious circle. Most Japanese do not want to get caught in the rough games the big powers play — but they are caught, and this deepens the anxiety here. And as the alarm grows, so does the urge to arm.

"Why," the editor asks rhetorically, "did the gods put us in the midst of warlike enemies? Once we wanted to be the Switzerland of Asia. Today, to survive, we must be more like France."

OHIRA . . . a dove becomes a hawk

Mrs. Gandhi battles new charges of skullduggery

By SUNANDA DATTA-RAY

CALCUTTA — When Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who was U.S. ambassador in New Delhi in the early seventies, claimed in his recently published book A Dangerous Place that the American intelligence services had twice financed Mrs. Indira Gandhi's election campaigns, he was driving a nail into the political coffin of India's most charismatic, enigmatic and controversial leader.

Members of Parliament last week angrily demanded a full investigation into the alleged funds. Overlooking the fact that Moynihan and Mrs. Gandhi came to hate each other because of U.S. opposition to India's role in liberating Bangladesh in 1971, ruling Janata coalition leaders take Mrs. Gandhi's guilt for granted. The Janata general-secretary, Nanaji Deshmukh, has called on the former prime minister "not to deny her involvement with the Central Intelligence Agency of America simply for her political survival but to disclose to the government how much money she had taken from it."

Second time

This is the second time that an American disclosure seems explicitly to have been tailored to help Prime Minister Morarji Desai's struggle for survival by publicly impugning his principal opponent. On the first occasion, a "leak" in American newspapers let out the information that Mrs. Gandhi's government had twice collaborated with U.S. defence intelligence to place sensitive monitoring devices at high altitudes in the Himalayas to spy on China's nuclear program.

What makes such revelations highly damaging is the fact that Mrs. Gandhi has never ceased to denounce American machinations in the subcontinent. Because of her radical rhetoric, voters have come to expect any kind of co-operation with the U.S. as a betrayal of Asian solidarity. If it can now be established that the fiery Congress leader was secretly hand in glove with the very people against whom she thundered so frequently, her chances of regaining public confidence must be rated low indeed.

Little wonder then that the shaky Janata coalition, torn by internal strife and discredited by administrative bungling and corruption, is making capital of the Moynihan memoirs. The hoped-for effect is to erode Mrs. Gandhi's standing in the country.

The frenzied nationwide protests when she was arrested last year and the massive majority with which she was returned to Parliament clearly indicate that people are willing to forget the harsh dictatorial methods through which she ruled during the 19 months of the Emergency. There is a magic in her speeches that seems to erase memories of suffering at her hands.

Mrs. Gandhi was not exaggerating when she claimed recently that "the Janata Party was born out of hatred and is still being consumed by hatred and fear." Nor may she have been too far off the mark in detecting a pattern in the upheavals that have convulsed all the neighboring countries of India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka. It is revealing that while Desai refused to intercede for Pakistan's condemned former Premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, Mrs. Gandhi was the only Indian leader of note not only to issue an anguished appeal to President Zia ul Haq but also to seek the intervention of other foreign dignitaries.

"A judiciary rendered docile," she said, "has been utilized in this case for doing away with a strong and popular political opponent. Such misuse of the law courts should indeed cause deep concern anywhere. This technique is fraught with dangerous consequences and must unreservedly be condemned."

Her compassion and concern for justice must have been laced with fears for her own survival. For the end of the road may also be in view for the 62-year-old woman who was prime minister of India from 1966 until her party was so dramatically routed in the country's 1977 general elections, and who is now fighting alone to keep out of jail.

She need not fear the gallows that cruelly terminated the mercurial career of Bhutto, who shared many of her virtues and weaknesses. Nor is she in much danger of being murdered, as was Sheikh Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh. But there is little likelihood that Morarji Desai, who displays a strong vindictive streak, will ever allow her the relatively peaceful retirement granted to South Asia's only other woman prime minister, Sri Lanka's Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

Desai has devised a solution that is typically Indian. His reply to Mrs. Gandhi's daunting challenge is to use his executive power to entrench her so firmly in legal rigmarole that she will have no time for political mobilization. Since the prosecutions against her have ostensibly been instituted to enforce retributive justice for crimes commmitted during the Emergency, the prime minister enjoys the added luxury of being able to compliment himself on his moral righteousness.

Web of laws

When Congress supporters recently complained of curbs on Mrs. Gandhi's freedom, Desai artlessly asked: "But is she not free to go about wherever she wants and say whatever she wants — most of it lies?"

Mrs. Gandhi is free to move, but only in theory. Every so often she has to present herself in courts as far apart as Bangalore in South India and Imphal in the north-eastern hills. But even this relative freedom will disappear when measures against her are taken under the recently adopted Special Courts Act for the Speedy Trial of Emergency Offences.

Ram Jethmalani, a leading Janata lawyer, who introduced the measure in Parliament, explained that, "The object of this Bill is that those people who want to go to the polls, the people who wish to throw themselves open to political power again in this Parliament and in the legislatures, their real character must be determined before the next elections take place in the country."

That description fits only one person: Indira Gandhi.

Under the Act, a panel of selected judges will be nominated to try offences that are not punishable in the ordinary law courts under the existing law of the land. It lies entirely in the government's discretion to decide who should be charged and with what. The only stipulation is that crimes must have been committed during the Emergency by people who held high public or political office then.

Again, the only target is Mrs. Gandhi.

Mrs. Gandhi's conviction is a foregone conclusion. But whatever the eventual outcome, the cases are expected to drag on for months and years with Mrs. Gandhi having to appear in court at least three or four times every week. Clearly, she will be so tied up in legal red tape, so harassed with niggling little details of evidence and examination, that she cannot possibly find time for anything else.

NEW YORK — If the state withers away it is more likely to be succeeded by the multinational corporation than the institutions of communal brotherhood foreseen by Karl Marx.

It would be rash to say that the withering is already far advanced. Any state that can still control the machinery of the Internal Revenue Service must still be reckoned an ominous power, no matter how muscle-bound its nuclear arsenal may leave it in the conduct of diplomacy. Nevertheless, there are signs that even the great powers must now deal with the multinationals as equals.

President Carter may declare energy the most vital crisis facing the Republic today, but the international oil corporations have the final say about how it shall be dealt with by the United States government. In the end this is very much what the international oil companies wanted all along and Carter, having marched the nation up the hill, marches it down again explaining that the most vital challenge to the Republic today is, in fact, not energy but inflation.

The power of the multi-nationals is not confined to the capitalist world. Coca-Cola, No. 56 on the Fortune 500 list, and PepsiCo, No. 60, negotiate monopoly deals with the atheistic Communists of Peking and Moscow. Stomach carbonation does more than Lenin can to ease the brotherhood of man. If the Reds must turn to the capitalists to provide it — well, Communism also has its contradictions in the era of ascendant capitalism.

France negotiates with the Ford Motor Company, No. 3 on the Fortune 500, for economic assistance, offering government subsidies to encourage Ford to build a billion-dollar factory that would create 8,000 jobs in Lorraine.

This, in turn, provokes Peugeot-Citroen and Renault into political combat with Ford for the largess of the French government. Political competition among multi-nationals is as fierce as competition among states and, as recent news stories have indicated, American companies have had to evolve new ethical codes, sometimes accepting bribery as standard modus operandi, in order to compete effectively in this battle of the capitalist giants.

Curiously, the rise of the multinationals, these ultimate expressions of capitalism, occurs at a time when the daily news reports speak of economic recession, eroding currencies and dwindling resources. Capitalism, one gathers, is in acute disrepair. Yet its power is more extensive than ever.

What is illusion, and what reality? Perhaps the reality is that it is not capitalism, but the state that is on the downhill grade. Even the superpowers with their vast, grotesque and useless atomic arsenals begin to look like pitiful, helpless giants as they lose power to control events not only in tiny tribal kingdoms, but also within their own borders.

The multi-nationals do not seem to have that problem, perhaps because they have no borders and no ideology to promote beyond the principle that the accretion of wealth is good, no matter how the customer may feel about Marx, Jefferson or Mao Zedong.

It is probably misleading to think of multi-nationals as states without borders. They would surely not want the burdens states must assume, the gravest of which require old-fashioned governments to devote most of their wealth to non-productive military investment and survival assistance to life's unfortunates.

It is precisely these burdens that are promoting the decline of the state as a dynamic institution around which late 20th-century society can be effectively organized. It is in the interest of the multi-nationals to keep the state in business for the purpose of conducting these unproductive chores. The state also provides a convenient focus for popular anger that might otherwise become counter-productive to corporate goals.

In matters that count most to the multi-nationals they may deal as equals with the superpowers, as the oil corporations deal with the United States. They may deal with small governments as client states, as ITT did with Chile. But even corporations that are now more powerful than most of the nations in NATO are unlikely to ask to be admitted to the alliance.

Membership in NATO breeds no return for shareholders, requires unproductive expenditures of capital and entitles you to nothing more than military protection against enemy armies. For the multi-national, there are no enemy armies, just potential markets. It is the ideal institution for a future in which nobody cares very much about anything but the standard of living. But, of course, there is always some spoilsport who does.

This is why the mnulti-nationals probably won't assert thermselves too strongly against governments for a while, except in matters, like oil, where real money is at stake.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market advanced moderately in active mid-afternoon trading today.

The TSE 300 index was up 4.67 to 1,466.15.

Among the 14 stock groups within the composite index, golds led the eight gainers while management companies led the six losers.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. was 2.57 million shares, compared with 2.55 million shares at the same time Friday. The market was closed Monday.

Advances outnumbered declines 181 to 164 with 230 issues unchanged.

Trading in Ronalds-Federated Ltd. resumed at 10:40 a.m. after a halt at the opening to permit an offer by F. P. Publications Ltd. for 227,000 common shares of Ronalds-Federated at $20.50 a share.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said 267,557 shares were tendered under the offer at Toronto and Montreal and the tenders will be pro rated at 85 per cent. Ronalds-Federated fell 1½ to $17½ by 2 p.m.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in moderate trading today amid renewed energy worries.

But gainers held a 6-to-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Wall Street got some unpleasant news overnight in the form of word that Algeria had posted a sharp increase in the price of its light high-quality crude oil.

Analysts said the news raised fears of further price hikes by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries when the cartel holds its semi-annual meeting in Geneva at the end of next month.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices continued advancing in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange today, with the 85-stock composite index gaining 1.14 to 247.63.

Canadians gobbling California real estate

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Canadians have come quietly but in great strength, gobbling up real estate in Southern California to the tune of about $1.5 billion, according to The Los Angeles Times.

In a full-page, detailed article under the headline Canadians Are Coming, Canadians Are Coming, the newspaper says Canadians are investing because construction methods are the same as in Canada, the climate is better, time zones are similar and because "opportunities are here for growth."

Conversely, it says the reasons for leaving Canada are prompted by political instability, restrictions on development, wage and price controls and difficulties in marketing.

It quotes a variety of U.S. and Canadian executives to support the claim that Canadians have joined the Arabs, Iranians, Koreans and Japanese as the new breed of investors in the state.

The newspaper says the Canadians have entered the market unoticeably, and somewhat in disguise.

Douglas Gfeller, president of Gfeller Development Co. Inc., is quoted as saying the Canadians are like the Germans in that both feel strongly about hiring local talent to run their operations.

Sanford Goodkin of the Sanford R. Goodkin Research Corp. in Del Mar, Calif. said the Canadians are not "baddies from the north."

"They are as American as peachy-keen pie and welcomed by more than health resorts."

"Coming out of Toronto, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Calgary, the Big Six of the Canadian buyers have already accumulated about $1.5 billion of investments using about $100 million."

He identified the Big Six as Cadillac Fairview Corp. and Markborough Properties Ltd., both of Toronto; Genstar Ltd., Montreal; Oxford Development Group Ltd., Edmonton; Daon Development Corp., Vancouver; and Nu-West Development Corp. Ltd., Calgary.

Jay Wexler, a La Jolla, Calif. realty consultant, said Canadians have also contributed to a sharp rise in land prices because of their purchases.

But there was "no doubt that Canadian developers have substantial credibility and a keen sense for land value."

Gfeller said Americans can learn a lesson from Canadians. Unlike Americans, they were willing to look at the long-term results of investments.

"The good news is that they love joint ventures."

John D'Eath, president of Freehold Properties Inc. of Vancouver which enteredthe market in 1976, said in 1974 and 1975 American financial institutions spread their cash too freely.

"This is when the Canadian companies started moving in. They had lots of cash and they were looking for investments. They saw what they thought were bargains."

John R. White, president and chief executive officer of Landauer Associates Inc., of New York, is quoted as saying the CANADIANS are a more important source of investment capital than West Germany, the Dutch or Swiss.

He said they will continue to be so because of their familiarity with the U.S. market.

"I look for them to get more active in the industrial-commercial area as it heats up in California."

Doubled spending plans for The Bay

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hudson's Bay Co. will more than double its spending on new stores this year, President Donald McGiverin told the company's annual meeting.

Five new stores will be added to the 155-store Zeller's Ltd. chain and The Bay itself will build nine new outlets to bring the number of stores bearing its name to 278.

No new stores will be added to the 21 Simpsons Ltd. outlets acquired in a successful corporate takeover earlier this year, but "major modernization programs" are planned at Simpsons stores in downtown Toronto and Yorkdale.

McGiverin estimated the total cost of store expansion this year at $104 million. He said the company also plans to spend about $27 million on real estate investment and will increase its working capital by about $70 million.

The annual meeting was the first since the department store chain was taken over by the conglomerate owned by newspaper magnate Kenneth Thomson.

McGiverin said Hudson's Bay Co. had sales of $1.9 billion last year and a net profit from operations of $44.6 million. It also realized $98 million from the sale of its investments in Siebens Oil and Gas Ltd. and Glenlivet Distillers Ltd.

He said he remains optimistic the company will meet its earlier-announced goal of making a profit of $3.05 a share this year, assuming retail sales continue to grow as projected.

Thomson interests purchased 17.3 million of the 23 million shares in Hudson's Bay Co. earlier this year at a cost of $37 a share.

One of the individuals realizing major gains from the transaction was George T. Richardson, governor of The Bay.

Richardson bought more than one million shares in the company in several lots in February at about $23 a share, but he again denied Friday that he had any inside knowledge of the Thomson offer at the time he made the purchases.

He said he had wanted to buy more stock for some time but was prohibited from doing so until February by legal and corporate restrictions on insider trading.

Stockholders eventually offered to sell Thomson 21 million shares of The Bay stock, but Thomson accepted only 17.3 million because it wanted to limit its holdings to 75 per cent of the shares outstanding.

It accepted 82.3 per cent of the shares offered by each stockholder and returned the rest.

Alberta building booming

EDMONTON (CP) — A total of 158 industrial and commercial construction projects were completed in Alberta during the six-month period ending June 30, 1978.

Total value of projects either completed, under construction or proposed was $19.4 billion.

Activity in the commercial sector nearly doubled in comparison to the previous six months, with 655 projects worth $2.3 billion reported.

Industrial projects showed a slight increase, with a value of $17.1 billion.

Big rig users cutting cost-price differences

MONCTON (CP) — Florida oranges sell for about $1.80 a dozen at a retail store in St. John's, Nfld., while a pound of fresh cod goes for about $1.70 there.

Thousands of miles away, in Orlando, Fla., cod is sold at a similar store for $4 a pound and oranges for 80 cents a dozen.

The realities of the market-place and the basic law of supply and demand are traditional factors in the widely varied prices. But there's another consideration, cost of transportation.

However, transportation costs are being chipped away, spokesman here say. And while bulk carriers, especially rail, can often undercut the highway transport system, commodities are increasingly finding their way into tractor-trailers.

In the Atlantic region, a Canadian firm is providing a major service to truckers as a link between markets in the United States and Canada.

CN Marine said it moved 230,000 trucks and tractor-trailers last year with an estimated $1 billion worth of goods destined for markets across the continent. This activity represented $6 million in the company's revenue, a full quarter of its revenue for 1978.

Ironically, CN Marine is not a trucking company — it operates a fleet of ferries — but its entry into the truck transport league was not accidental.

CN Marine officials said they purposely set out to provide an attactive service to their customers through the Atlantic region and that many in the trucking industry feel they have delivered.

Using roll-on, roll-off vessels such as the Marine Evangeline between Yarmouth, N.S. and Portland, Me., truckers no longer have to go through the ordeal of backing on and off ship, a procedure that often used to take up to two hours at both ends.

Harold Schoppee, 41, of Cherryfield, Me., a trucker for 13 years with Chet's Transport of Calais, Me., said the roll-on, roll-off vessels introduced to the CN Marine fleet in the 1970s have revolutionized the industry.

"I can remember what it was like, and it was rough," Schoppee said in an interview. "At one time it just seemed a lot easier to drive through New Brunswick."

Schoppee, who uses four major CN Marine services a year, feels truckers have it easy these days.

Another advantage of using the ferry services is that truckers get extra rest, he said.

Coal sales to France?

CALGARY (CP) — Sales of Canadian coal to France are likely, but not in the immediate future, says the president of the Coal Association of Canada.

Garnet Page said in an interview that France must import 25 to 28 million tons a yaar. French industry and government officials recently ended a series of meetings here aimed at studying the coal needs of France and Canada.

No agreements were signed, said Page, but information on research and supplies was exchanged.

Completion of sales to France would take at least several years after the signing of contracts since existing mines are kept busy fulfilling current contracts. New mines would have to be built.

Although Canada is looking for new export markets, the country is a net importer of coal. Page said this is because it is cheaper for Ontario, the largest coal-sonsuming province, to import coal from the United States than to pay for coal shipped all the way from Alberta and British Columbia.

Energy-saving programs urged

Times News Services

Energy ministers from 20 leading industrialized nations decided in Paris today to speed up energy-saving programs throughout the non-Communist world because of the fast growing shortage of imported oil.

Concluding a two-day session of the managing boards of the International Energy Agency, the ministers called for greater international co-operation to solve the looming energy crisis and urged a more equitable sharing of oil resources.

Western ministers also signed 12 co-operative projects to step up research and development of new oil and coal technology, geothermal and solar energy and energy conservation.

The ministers decided that IEA countries will take immediate steps to carry out energy saving measures including appropriate pricing policies — a move to make petroleum products more expensive to cut their consumption.

If voluntary measures will prove insufficient, mandatory action will be taken including a possible limitation of gasoline consumption in the summer vacation time so as to save fuel for heating in winter time.

The ministers, however, for the time being shelved a demand by Sweden for the activation of the standing IEA oil-sharing mechanism. The ministers agreed that by putting into effect the system for the benefit of Sweden, which is experiencing a minor oil supply shortfall, they might create panic on the world oil market where speculative buying already has driven up prices sky-high.

Meanwhile, Algeria has increased the price of its crude oil by $2.45 to $21 a barrel, making it the most expensive oil in the world.

Gas $1.30 a gallon at one Calif. station

Times News Services

The Davis Shortstop Market in Davis, Calif. is charging $1.30 per gallon for self-service regular gasoline — the highest price in the nation.

"That is the highest price that we've heard of," said Dale Cook, a spokesman for the U.S. Energy Administration.

Cook said the Benicia-based chain is within legal limits on the price.

"We've audited their books and the firm apparently has sufficient 'bank' to charge this price," Cook said.

Under federal pricing rules, gasoline dealers were allowed to establish a "bank" during the last several years. If they sold gasoline for five cents below the allowable ceiling price, for example, they could "bank" the difference and collect it at a later time.

John Roscoe, the chain's president, said the high price would serve to shorten long lines at the chain's outlets by discouraging gas purchases.

Meanwhile, Fred Bowman of Seattle, a director of the Evergreen Service Station Association which has more than 600 member stations in Washington says at least 80 per cent of the stations in metropolitan areas of Western Washington will be closed during the Memorial Day weekend.

He said gas should be available in Eastern Washington.

The long gas station lines that clogged California streets and frustrated drivers during the last three weeks shrank dramatically Monday, and in some areas, there was no waiting at all.

'It may be that there is less panic by motorists," said lawyer Jim Carroll of Anaheim, a spokesman for the Southern California Service Station Dealers Association. "Perhaps it took a week of odd-even to bring the situation under control."

No Carter pressure vows U.K.

LONDON (WP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was told Monday that Britain's move toward recognition of Rhodesia will be accomplished slowly to avoid increasing domestic U.S. pressure on President Carter to follow the same path.

Vance reportedly received this assurance during five hours of talks Monday with Lord Carrington, foreign secretary in Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's new Conservative government here.

During the dicussions, Carrington reportedly said that steps taken by London to recognize the black majority government of Prime Minister-elect Abel Muzorewa will be slow and cautious and almost certainly will not produce a final, formal decision until after the meeting of British Comonwealth nations in August in Lusaka, Zambia.

Thatcher's observers formally reported last week that, despite some reservations, they found the Rhodesian election to be sufficiently free and fair to justify recognition of the Muzorewa government. Although the observers's legnthy written report has not yet been made public here, U.S. officials have a copy.

Sources on both sides said Rhodesia took up about 1 1-2 hours of Monday's meeting and that the two ministers will discuss the subject further, probably on Wednesday. Except for describing the meeting as "fruitful" and "profitable," neither Vance nor Carrington would talk publicly about the substance of their discussions.

But it is known that Carrington, while emphasizing his government's commitment to a change in policy toward Rhodesia, expressed understanding for Carter's problems and a desire to plot Britain's change of course in a way that will not aggravate the difficulties facing the American president.

U.S. sources said, though, it would be misleading to expect that the meetings here will produce agreement on a new joint Anglo-American strategy. For one thing, the sources noted, the direction of U.S. policy toward Rhodesia will not be known until Carter makes the determination required by Congress about whether the Rhodesian election was fair and merits the lifting of sanctions.

Because of a belief that no lasting solution can be found without the participation of guerrilla forces fighting from bases in neighboring black African countries, the United States and the former Labor government here refused to recognize the internal settlement under which the old white minority regime in Rhodesia permitted elections leading to a multiracial government with a black majority.

Instead, the Anglo-American plan called for a peace conference of all factions, including the guerrillas, to write a new constitution and one-man, one-vote elections under international supervision. Despite strenuous efforts, however, neither Washington nor London were able to gain acceptance of the plan.

The Thatcher government's new British strategy on Rhodesia is evolving in what one acknowledgeable source Monday characterized as "a series of tentative moves toward the ultimate objective" of recognizing the Muzorewa government and lifting British economic sanctions.

Informed sources said Monday, however, that Britian will not be basing an ambassador-like envoy in Salisbury, but rather than one or more senior, London-based Foreign office diplomats will be regularly visiting Salisbury for periods of up to several weeks at a time.

After declaring the breakaway white-minority Rhodesian government of Premier Ian Smith illegal, Britain had continued to maintain in Salisbury a small office manned by a low-level British civil servant.

Both the United Nations and the Commonwealth of Nations have refused to recognize the election results because the internal settlement constitution reserved a disproportionate amount of power in the new government for Rhodesia's whites, who will continue to control the army and much of the civil service.

Radiation-harmed, but can't sue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court has left intact a decision barring soldiers forced to march toward a 1953 nuclear blast from suing the government for the cost of illnesses triggered by radiation exposure.

The justices Monday denied a hearing to Stanley Jaffee, a former serviceman who claimed he developed inoperable breast cancer because he was forced to watch a nuclear test blast at Camp Desert Rock, Nev., in the summer of 1953.

Jaffee, a 47-year-old River Edge, N.J., pharmacist with a wife and three children, said he and a troop of soldiers stood only 2,000 to 3,000 yards from the site of the explosion, wearing no protective clothing.

"These servicemen were not advised in advance of the nature of the tests, they were not warned of the dangers involved in participating in these tests, and they were given no opportunity to refuse to attend," Jaffee argued in a lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Newark, N.J.

As the bomb exploded, Jaffee said, he felt a blast of intense heat and saw a red ball on the desert floor an instant before a blinding light cut off the view.

"In the aftermath of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki experiences, it was perfectly clear to government officials that it was highly dangerous to human life to permit such exposure," Jaffee charged.

In 1977, Jaffee said, he developed inoperable breast cancer, which has spread throughout his body, as a result of his exposure to "massive doses" of radiation.

I wanted to kill myself, Thorpe, Scott testifies

LONDON (AP) — Former male model Norman Scott testified Monday that he had wanted to kill himself and Jeremy Thorpe during his alleged homosexual involvement with the former leader of the British Liberal party.

"I just wanted to kill myself . . . and I wanted to kill Thorpe," Scott male model said in his second day of court testimony.

He was appearing during presentation of prosecution testimony on the 10th day of the trial of Thorpe and three other men on murder conspiracy charges.

Thorpe; his friend, David Holmes, and two businessmen, John le Mesurier and George Deakin, have denied they conspired to murder Scott. Thorpe has pleaded not guilty to a charge of inciting Holmes to kill Scott. He also denies Scott's homosexual allegation.

Thorpe, 50, resigned as Liberal party leader in 1972 and lost his bid for re-election to the House of Commons last month.

The prosecution alleges Thorpe feared Scott as a threat to his political career and to the Liberal party, the third-biggest party in Britain, because he kept telling people about their relationship.

"I never ever lived with Jeremy Thorpe for a long period of time," Scott told the jury in another round of explicit testimony about his alleged homosexual affair. "The most I ever stayed with him was for three or four days at a time. In between, I would go to my mother's or stay with friends, unless I had a job."

He said he shared a single bed with Thorpe in an apartment in Westminster, near the House of Commons, during 1962.

"By the end of 1962, I was unhappy. I really wanted to finish the whole thing . . . myself, Thorpe and everything. I did not know quite how to do it. I just wanted to kill myself . . . and I wanted to kill Thorpe."

Rest stop left chopper cops up in the air

HOUSTON (UPI) — Police officers Fred Stephenson and H.W. Lozano attributed their helicopter accident to nature and a little bad luck.

Flying freeway duty in the police helicopter Monday and finding no rest stop in the sky, the pair was forced to land in a field.

"Pure and simple, they had to make a potty stop," said Capt. Ken DeFoor Monday.

Shortly thereafter, Stephenson, 32, and Lozano, 29, prepared to return to the skies over Interstate 10. But as the copter was rising, one of its skids struck a mound of rubbish. The aircraft flipped, chopping off its tail section and damaging its blades.

Unhurt, Stephenson and Lozano attempted to radio for assistance but found the radio had been knocked out in the crash. The officers then hiked a mile to report the accident and the preceeding circumstances.

Amin's town falls

GULU, Uganda (AP) — Thousands of Tanzanian and Ugandan troops are marching toward a showdown with Idi Amin's forces in the deposed dictator's home town after taking Gulu without a fight.

They seized Gulu, 270 kilometres north of the capital of Kampala, on Sunday then began crossing the Pakwach Bridge, the only gateway into the West Nile district and Amin's home town of Arua.

The main force is travelling on foot, and all are expected to have crossed the bridge by Wednesday, then move on to Arua, near the Uganda-Zaire-Sudan border.

Between 3,000 and 10,000 pro-Amin soldiers are reported to have retreated into the West Nile district and begun preparations for a major defence of the area.

Although Gulu fell with no resistance, about 12 West Nile tribesmen were killed soon afterward by rival spear-wielding Acholis, long the target of Amin's tribal massacres.

Borders stay shut, Cairo tells Tel Aviv

United Press International

Egypt said today its borders with Israel will stay closed even after it gets back the unofficial capital of the Sinai, El Arish, on Friday.

Israel also took a hard-line stance, with the Cabinet Monday accepting Prime Minister Menachem Begin's plan of only limited administrative autonomy for the Palestinians.

An Egyptian government spokesman contradicted Begin's statement in Cairo last month that the borders would be declared opened after he meets with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Sunday at El Arish.

The spokesman, in a statement published today by the newspaper Al Ahram, said there would be no free movement between the Sinai town and Israel for at least nine months.

The statement said Israelis will not be allowed into El Arish, and the Egyptian inhabitants of the Mediterranean town will not be permitted to travel to Israel for work.

The spokesman said free movement between El Arish, captured by Israel in the 1967 war, and Israeli-occupied territories "will be part of the normalization of relations which will not start before nine months."

The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty stipulates that the two countries should open talks on normalizing their relations nine months after exchanging ratification documents.

Diplomatic sources say Egyptians are using the "normalization of relations" as their trump card for pressuring Israel to soften its position in negotiations on Palestinian autonomy, scheduled to open Friday.

But Israel's Cabinet Monday accepted Begin's plan of granting only administrative autonomy to the Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip despite the objections of Defence Minister Ezer Weizman and Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

Sadat and Begin will board an Egyptian Boeing 707 Sunday, fly to Tel Aviv and back to Cairo without landing in either capital before returning to El Arish.

An Egyptian government spokesman said the flight will symbolize the opening of air space between Egypt and Israel, but said regular flights between the two cities "will also be part of the normalization of relations."

3-month freeze on U.S. N-plants

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff Monday announced a three-month freeze on the issuance of operating licenses and construction permits for new nuclear power plants while experts assesses the implications of the accident at Three Mile Island.

Harold Denton, director of the NRC's office of nuclear reactor regulation, told the commissioners it would take one month for a special 15-member task force to list the lessons learned from the March 28 near-disaster in Pennsylvania. Another month will be needed to put those lessons into the form of required changes in technology and procedure and to issue them in letters to the nuclear plants, and a third month will involve responses from the plants and a review by the NRC staff.

Denton called this period "suspended animation," noting it will affect four pending operating licenses and five construction permit applications in a total of six states.

The plants whose license applications will be held up include Salem 2, N.J.; North Anna 2, Mineral, Va.; Diablo Canyon, Calif., and Sequoyah 1, Tenn. Construction permits to be held up include Perkins 1, 2 and 3, North Carolina, and Black Fox 1 and 2, Oklahoma.

The ultimate impact of the freeze on the nuclear industry is not yet clear. The utilities involved stand to lose tens of millions of dollars in idled equipment and interest costs during the delay, in addition to spending unknown amounts to make the changes the NRC ultimately requires. At the moment, 94 plants are in some stage of planning or construction stretching to the end of the century.

Earlier, the chairman of a House investigating team reported that in his opinion, Three Mile Island "has proved the extreme vulnerability of nuclear power." Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., told the House energy subcommittee that "an accident such as occurred at Three Mile Island not only could happen again, but is likely at any time."

Either the operators on the scene did not know what was going on inside the reactor during the most crucial period, he said, or "they did know and did not tell the truth." If they did not know, he said, "it is a terrible indictment of the entire technology."

Weaver said he was "flabbergasted" to learn during his group's probe that the operators seemed to disregard a temperature reading of 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit (1,137 degrees C.) inside the reactor and indications of a sharp rise in pressure, later thought to be a fire or an explosion, in the reactor containment building.

"If they don't know the significance of that," Weaver said, "what do they know? I ask you, what do they know?"

He later asked NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie if it would be fair to say that "the reactor was out of control and the operators didn't know what was going on inside it." Hendrie responded, "I think that's a fair characterization of the situation" for the first few hours of the March 28 event.

In Canada, this tree, just coming to life, will take from 50 to 80 years to grow large enough for harvesting. A similar tree in the southern states could be ready in 25 years, 10 years in Brazil.

Competition grows

About $1,000 per Canadian family is brought into Canada each year by pulp and paper exports. Competition grows tougher as other countries develop new ways to grow and harvest forest crops. Plantations of fast-maturing trees, sugar cane, even grass are being used to make good pulp and paper. To compete, our industry needs new machinery, new technology, higher productivity. And that takes growth money, profit.

If you think Canada's natural forest puts us ahead of the world in pulp and paper, you may have to think again.

In plantations in the southern United States, they plant trees as a crop, like corn or tomatoes. The trees grow evenly spaced, in rows on relatively level ground. They take 20 to 30 years to reach harvesting size. (Canadian trees take from 50 to 80 years.)

In Brazil, even faster, growing plantations feed new pulp mills. In Argentina they are using willow; sugar cane is being used to make paper in Peru; in Arizona they are experimenting with grasses.

By 1995 experts believe the world will be using twice as much pulp and paper as it does today. The prospects for Canada's forest industry to share in this growth are excellent. But the sharing is not there just for the asking.

To keep our industry vigorously at work, to sell successfully in international markets, Canada has to be a low cost, high quality supplier. That takes improved production techniques, new ways to turn wood into paper, special machines to harvest our difficult forests economically, a continuing supply of accessible wood.

New machines, harvesting equipment and processes to keep Canada competitive will cost the pulp and paper companies billions of dollars. Where will that money come from? It must come from profit and from investors.

Profit is growth money. A healthy, profitable pulp and paper industry finds it easier to attract investment. Recent improved profits created by larger demand and boosted further by Canada's lower-valued dollar, have encouraged companies to plan investment in upgrading mills and purchasing new equipment.

The pulp and paper industry is Canada's largest employer. It brings in about $1,000 a year in export dollars for each Canadian family. The forest industry contributes more to the Canadian standard of living than any other.

Parks jammed over weekend

Provincial park campsites on lower Vancouver Island and on the Gulf Islands were jammed over the Victoria Day weekend.

"People had lots of fun," said a parks official. "I have never seen such crowds."

Goldstream, Bamberton and Cowichan Lake's Gordon Bay — and the marine parks — were packed.

At Montague Harbor Park there were 190 boats and all campsites were taken up, he said. The Sidney Island Spit park also was loaded.

So far there have been no reports of vandalism but at Ruckle Park on Salt Spring Island some campers complained of noise caused mostly by "locals."

One camper, James Ward of Vancouver, said the rowdiest were Salt Spring islanders.

Student meeting to probe values

Victoria Girls Alternative Program (GAP) is hosting the third annual B.C. Alternative School Students Conference Wednesday and Thursday at the University of Victoria.

The conference will be held in the Student Union Building and is planned around the theme Values — Personal and Social.

Guest speaker this year is Herb Kohl, advocator of students rights and spokesman for student-centred teaching methods.

Other events include presentations from organizations such as Greenpeace, Rape Relief and the Canadian Armed Forces. Discussions on nuclear power, peer counselling, decision making and prison experiences will also take place.

Organizers expect more than 300 student delegates representing 30 alternative programs across the province.

GAP students have been working on the conference as part of their curriculum and have been responsible for planning and organizing.

Record crowd for parade

Even weather joined in good times theme

Marching rhythm was maintained by the big brass

Even the weather co-operated Monday to illustrate the Good Times '79 theme of the big Victoria Day parade.

It was the sort of day to reinforce Victorians' traditional smugness about their climate, with cloudless skies and warm sunshine providing a technicolor, widescreen setting for the three-hour spectacle.

The ingredients were basically the same as in previous years — more than 50 colorful floats, the oompahpah of 30 marching bands, scores of clowns and uninhibited bit players — but somehow the perfect weather gave it all an added flavor of fun.

Thousands of spectators lined the route between the Mayfair shopping centre and Belleville. A spokesman for the event's organizers, the Greater Victoria Festival Society, said today it was one of the biggest crowds she has seen in the eight years she has been involved.

At the reviewing stand outside city hall a clutch of dignitaries all clad in Victorian Days costumes included Lt.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving and Mrs. Irving, Victoria Mayor Michael Young and Mrs. Young, Rear Admiral Michael Martin and Mrs. Martin, and Helen Beirnes, president of the Greater Victoria Festival Society.

But we don't want to win a million!

LAST WEEK, BY SOME near-miracle, my wife found herself with $6 left over from her grocery shopping. We promptly invested the dollar in a cup of inflation-priced coffee, and while sipping it, wondered what we should do with the five-spot.

"Tell you what," Win said. "This is lucky money. We ought to buy a ticket in the Provincial with it."

So we finished our coffee, then strolled over to the little post office plus lottery ticket sales depot islanded in Campbell River's Ironswood Mall to invest our goblin gold.

Win bought a ticket. She applied her thumbnail briskly to the coating that masks the little rectangle on which the words, 'Good Luck!' are usually printed.

Only this time, the message was different. It read, "Free Ticket."

Having won herself a free chance on the lottery, Win unmasked its magic rectangle too. On it was printed, $10.

The ticket seller handed over a $10 bill. Win bought two more tickets, scraped, and came up with yet another free one.

With five Provincial lottery tickets acquired for the price of one, we called a halt. Plainly, the luck had been yeasting in a curious and even startling way. We don't know what's going to come of all this, but will be waiting on the edges of our seats when the lottery drums stop spinning and the little numbered balls are plucked from them.

"With your luck," I said to my dear one, "you'll probably go and win a million dollars!"

Win looked at me blankly. Then a frown grooved her forehead.

"I hadn't thought of that," she said.

She reflected for a moment, then added: "A million is an awful lot of money."

The subject wasn't touched on again for several hours. But we both had it on our minds, as became apparent when we sat down for our pre-dinner drink of Win's homebrewed sake.

"Just supposing we won," my wife said, "what would we do with a million dollars?

I reviewed possibilities.

"Well," I said, "I suppose the first thing we'd do is get another house. A bigger one. Farther from the highway."

We considered the prospect without undue enthusiasm.

"I'm not sure I want another house," Win said. "I kind of like this one in spite of its flaws." She reflected further, then asked, "Would you like another boat?"

"Not me!" I said. "What's wrong with the boat we've got?"

The question was rhetorical. We're both perfectly happy with the sturdy 14-footer that takes us fishing. I cast about for something else to spend money on.

"Well," I said, "at least, we'd get a new car."

"Sure," Win said, "but weren't we going to do that anyway?"

She sipped her sake. "One thing . . . with a million dollars, there'd be no point in working. Just think! You'd never have to write another word. You could put your typewriter in its case and stow it in the attic.

By the time she'd reached that point in her picture, the cold chills were chasing each other up and down my spine.

"But I don't want to quit working!" I protested. "What would I find to do with myself?"

"Oh . . . You could go fishing," Win said vaguely, "or for walks on the beach. Or you could sit around and read."

I gave her an anxious look to see if she was serious. Her grin told me she wasn't.

"On second thought," she said, "maybe we'd better not win that million dollars."

The dismaying conclusion we've reached is that we emphatically don't need a million bucks . . . that, in fact, for a couple already dowered with everything we want, that kind of luck would be mighty like a disaster.

Still, we do have that batch of lucky tickets, and will be watching and listening nervously on the night of May 30 when the lottery draw takes place.

We could always find a use for a hundred thousand!

Montreal's cup runneth over - again

JUBILATION REIGNS as Montreal's Bob Gainey hoists Stanley Cup while riding shoulders of teammates after Canadiens won National Hockey League championship Monday for fourth straight year. Gainey was voted most valuable player in playoffs. Canadiens defeated New York Rangers 4-1. (CP wirephoto).

MONTREAL (CP) — What a difference a week makes to Montreal Canadiens — and what little change there is through the years.

Jacques Lemaire's two goals, including the winner, powered the Canadiens to their fourth consecutive Stanley Cup triumph Monday night, only eight days after New York Rangers had won the first game of the best-of-seven National Hockey League series 4-1 on the same ice.

After that, however, the Canadiens reeled off four straight victories — including 6-2 at home, 4-1 and 4-3 in overtime at New York's Madison Square Garden — to treat their Forum fans to the Cup-clinching game for the first time since 1968. Montreal has won six titles on the road since then.

"It's as good as we've played all season," left winger Bob Gainey, winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as most valuable player in the playoffs, said.

"We were aggressive offensively, and we were checking hard. We were working with all the players we had".

Gainey and defenceman Rick Chartraw had single goals for the Canadiens before 18,076 fans, while defenceman Carol Vadnais scored for the Rangers, who were seeking their first Cup victory since 1940 but, in the final accounting, found themselves outclassed.

The selfless Gainey — whom Victor Tikhonov, coach of the Russian national team, recently said "may be, technically, the best player in the world" — scored his sixth goal of the playoffs on a perfect conversion of a Doug Jarvis pass, giving the Canadiens a 3-1 lead at 11:01 of the second period.

But he was as valuable for his forechecking work and in traffic in front of Rangers goalie John Davidson's net.

"I don't think it was frustrating, because I contributed to the team the job that they wanted me to do, maybe the job I did best," said Gainey of his checking role.

If Gainey's goal killed the Rangers, Lemaire's second score buried them. Lemaire took a breakaway pass at the New York blue line from Houle and swept in front of the crease, forcing Davidson to sprawl in a vain effort to block his backhander.

The Cup-winning goal, with Rangers captain Dave Maloney serving a cross-checking penalty handed out with one second left in the first period, came at 1:02 of the middle period on a rink-length rush by Lemaire.

He drilled a slap shot from the blue line between Davidson's legs for the second Cup-winning score of his career.

Chartraw had opened the scoring at 10:36 of the first period, beating Davidson with a shot from the right point. Vadnais beat Canadiens goaltender Ken Dryden with a soft shot at 16:52 to make it 1-1.

The Canadiens, skating in the manner that has carried them to 22 Cup championships in their 70-year history, dating to the first in 1916, overwhelmed the New York defence in the opening minutes, and the Rangers didn't get their first shot at Dryden until the 7:11 mark.

The three-goal outburst in the second period brought the crowd to dizzy heights, graduating from waves of applause to thunderous, expectant ovations.

The scoreless third period counted down, and the roars grew with each of the final seconds.

Acting captain Serge Savard knew where the team found its latest inspiration when, after carrying the Cup around the ice on the victory lap, he turned to find Lemaire and pass it to him to hold aloft.

"Lemaire has been one of the greatest hockey players in the world for several years now, and he'll never have the chance to carry the Cup as captain. That's why I wanted him to do it this once in front of our fans."

Savard has acted as captain since Yvan Cournoyer succumbed to a back problem in November.

It was Savard — whom Gainey tabbed as a more worthy Conn Smythe winner — who ended the fourth game 7:25 into overtime at New York on Saturday night. Gainey, Houle and Yvon Lambert had the other Montreal goals then, with Pat Hickey, Don Murdoch and Phil Esposito scoring for the Rangers.

For the record, the Canadiens, second-place finishers over-all during the regular season behind New York Islanders, swept Toronto Maple Leafs in four games in their quarter-final series and eliminated Boston in overtime in the seventh game of a semi-final set.

The Rangers, fifth over-all during the regular season under first-year coach Fred Shero, beat Los Angeles Kings two straight in a preliminary round series, defeated Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 in a quarter-final and bounced the Islanders 4-2 in their semi-final set.

Veteran centre Phil Esposito just shook his head.

"They were awesome tonight," he said. "Awesome.

Budgets end tour on winning edge

Victoria Budgets finished up on the winning side of an eight-game swing through the Northwest International Fastball League by splitting a doubleheader Monday against Abbotsford Four Star Construction in Abbotsford.

Budgets finished the tour with a 5-3 record after blanking Abbotsford 3-0 in the opener and suffering a narrow 1-0 loss in the second game.

On Sunday, Peterbilt tripped Budgets twice 7-1 and 5-0 in Seattle after the Victoria club had walked over B&I Sports 11-0 and 4-0 Saturday in Tacoma.

Budgets scored all three runs in the seventh inning in the opener against Abbotsford. Bob Holness started things off with a one-out double, John Green singled to drive in Holness, Reg Underwood followed with another single and catcher Alden Govenlock drew a walk to load the bases. Warren Campbell was hit by a pitch to bring in Green and Dennis Eckert walked to bring in Govenlock.

Dave Wilson threw a two-hitter but emerged as the loser in the second game against Abbotsford, which gained a one-hitter from Ray Masse. Abbotsford came up with two double plays in the tight defensive struggle.

Campbell doubled in the fourth inning to drive in the lone run for Budgets in the opener against Peterbilt and Robin Cutting hurled a three-hitter to spark the Seattle club's second win.

Dave Ruthowsky came up with a five-hitter in the first game against Tacoma and John Green, who finished the tour with a total of nine hits, helped at the plate with a three-run homer in the five-run first inning and a run-scoring triple in the fifth. Holness contributed a double and a triple to the 13-hit attack to drive in four runs and Dave Williams added two singles and a home run.

Wilson earned the second win, striking out 12 and walking two to finish with a three-hitter. Green singled and scored the winning run.

Victims of Timbermen, Irish task gets tougher

Times News Services

What with Nanaimo Timbermen assuming the role of giant-killer in the Western Lacrosse Association, things don't get any easier for one of their victims, Victoria Shamrocks, this week.

The Timbermen, who upset Vancouver Burrards last week in Nanaimo, made it two in a row for the hometown fans Saturday with an 8-6 victory over the league-champion Shamrocks.

On Monday night, Burrards edged Coquitlam Adanacs 16-15.

Nanaimo's victory was the third point out of four taken by the Timbermen from the Shamrocks this season as the two clubs tied the season opener here 6-6.

It also moved the Timbermen into a third-place tie with the Shamrocks behind league-leading New Westminster Salmonbellies and Coquitlam.

And that's where this week's test comes in because the Rocks, who have now lost two and tied one of five games, are home to the Salmonbellies at Memorial Arena on Wednesday night and travel to Coquitlam to meet the Adanacs Saturday. And that is no easy task.

Timbermen took command early against the Irish and were never headed. They ran up a 5-0 lead in the first period and were on top 7-3 after the second.

Shamrocks were called for 53 minutes in penalties compared to 33 against the Timbermen and also had several goals called back for crease infractions.

A former Shamrock, Mike Walsh scored two goals to lead the Timbermen. Ron Dickson, Terry Bayes, Randy Noble, Doug Angrove, Brian Evans and Ron MacNeil scored singles. MacNeil, a former Shamrock and most valuable player in the WLA last season, also added two assists.

Goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer, besides stopping 39 Nanaimo shots, led the Irish pointmakers with four assists.

Bob Cool, a former Timbermen, scored two goals for the Shamrocks, while Jim Lynch, another ex-Timbermen from last year, Gerry Cadwallader, Charn Dhillon, Dave Lowden and Rick Baker had singles.

At Coquitlam, Doug Hayes scored four goals and Ron Pinder and Pat Ryan three each in Burrards' win over the Adanacs.

Eric Otterstrom scored two for the winners while Rob Dalzell, Mike McMillan, Stewart Aird and Terry Bingley added singles.

Coquitlam's Jim Aitchison scored four goals with Art Talson, Dave Durante, Frank Nielsen and Dan Wilson scoring two each and Matt Aitken, Wayne McAuley and Jon Caviglia adding singles.

Jets capture cup for keeps

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets locked up a piece of hockey history for themselves when they won the 1978-79 World Hockey Association championship.

Winnipeg's 7-3 win over Edmonton Oilers Sunday night gave the Jets the best-of-seven final series four games to two, and their third Avco Cup.

They won't be giving the trophy away any more. After seven season, the WHA officially folds at the end of the month. The Jets get to keep it.

The Jets, Oilers, Quebec Nordiques and New England Whalers will be chasing the Stanley Cup in the National League next season.

Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chief executive officer and the man who was behind Bobby Hull's jump to the WHA seven years ago, presented the Avco Cup.

Hatskin, founder of the Jets, wooed Hull away from Chicago Black Hawks in 1972, a multi-million-dollar jump that was crucial for the WHA's credibility.

Hatskin said he wished the Oilers could have won.

"Quebec won it, New England won it, Winnipeg won it, and it would have been perfect if Edmonton had won it too," he said.

But the Jets, who were hammered 10-2 in Edmonton Friday, weren't in a give-away mood. They took an early lead and never let up.

Willy Lindstom and Barry Long scored two goals each for Winnipeg. The others were by Kent Nilsson, Lyle Moffat and Paul MacKinnon. Terry Ruskowski assisted on four Winnipeg goals.

Ron Chipperfield, Bill Flett and Dave Semenko scored for the Oilers.

McCourt ruled LA's property

Times News Services

A federal appeals court in Cincinnati upheld today the National Hockey League's player reserve clause and ruled Dale McCourt is the property of Los Angeles Kings.

In a split 2-1 vote, the 6th U.S. Circuit court of appeals reversed the previous ruling of the U.S. district court of the Eastern District of Michigan.

McCourt, the leading scorer for Detroit Red Wings in 1977-78, had refused to play for Los Angeles after his contract was turned over by the Red Wings. McCourt remained with Detroit last season.

The Kings won McCourt's contract in arbitration after Rogatien Vachon, a Los Angeles goaltender who became a free agent, signed a contract with the Red Wings.

The reserve clause entitled Los Angeles to compensation from Detroit for the loss of Vachon. The compensation was decided by arbitrator Judge Ed Houston of Toronto.

Sonic rally fails in final seconds

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bobby Dandridge of Washington Bullets nodded, but it was Seattle SuperSonics who went to sleep after a fine comeback.

As he prepared to make an inbounds pass with two seconds remaining in the opener of the National Basketball Association championship series Sunday, Dandridge made an almost imperceptible motion with his head.

But Larry Wright picked up the subtle signal, drove the lane for a bounce pass from Dandridge, and was fouled by Dennis Johnson on a layup attempt as time expired.

Wright, who came off the bench to score 26 points, missed his first free throw but sank the next two, giving Washington a 99-97 victory and a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series that resumes here Thursday.

"Bobby motioned that the lane was open," Wright said. "I gave a head fake the opposite way and came down the lane."

"Wright just beat me," said Gus Williams, who scored 32 points for the SuperSonics and had blocked another Wright attempt when Washington brought the ball inbounds with five seconds left.

The Bullets, trying to become the first repeat champions of the NBA in 10 years, had three chances to win after Dennis Johnson rebounded a John Johnson shot and tied the score with 25 seconds left.

After Tom Henderson missed and Seattle's Lonnie Shelton fumbled the ball out of bounds, the Bullets intended to set a double screen for Dandridge, their clutch performer who had 23 points.

But Dennis Johnson switched to foil the strategy and, after Wright's hurried shot was tipped by Williams, Seattle's Jack Sikma knocked the ball out of bounds.

This time, Dandridge tossed the ball inbounds, a move which may have confused the SuperSonics.

The SuperSonics, who won the opener of last year's seven-game series with Washington after trailing by 19 points, almost equaled that miracle comeback.

Trailing 91-73 early in the fourth quarter, Seattle reeled off two 10-point strings — with Williams scoring six during each streak — and forged the tie when Dennis Johnson scored his 23rd point.

Legion's time spent in error and argument

It's tough enough beating Burnaby Cablevision at the best of times, but when you have to beat the clock too, defeat can become more exasperating.

And that's what happened to Esquimalt Legion in a Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game at Burnaby Sunday night as they went down to a heartbreaking 12-11 defeat.

Legion had come from behind a 3-1 deficit after the first period to outscore Cablevison 8-4 in the second period and take a 9-7 edge. And Legion had held that lead until the 17-minute mark of the third period when Cablevision tied it at 11-11.

Then, at 19:14, Bruce Turris put Cablevision ahead, and it was after that the trouble started.

Cablevision got the draw and, with 18 seconds to play and the shooting clock about to run out, a Cablevision player shot wildly at the Legion goal.

Mistakenly, the shooting clock was reset and, when Cablevision got possession, they simply ran out time.

Legion protested that they should have received possession of the ball because time had run out on the shooting clock and it should't have been reset.

Someone finally listened — Legion general manager Bob Reid thinks it was the commissioner — and the final 12 seconds of the game were ordered replayed.

However, game officials erred on that one too. The ball wasn't awarded to Legion as should have happened. A face-off was called instead and nobody really got possession before the 12 seconds was up.

Reid said Legion has decided not to to protest the game, even though he feels they have a legitimate complaint. "If the score had been tied we might have," he said, but who's to say we would have scored the tying goal. Still, it was a tough way to end what was an excellent game."

Dan McLenaghen scored three goals to lead Cablevision. John Swan and Turris each had two while singles went to Gord Roberts, Lyle Robinson, Gary Purden, Paul Dalmonte and Craig Wilson.

Paul Micahel scored three goals for Legion while Kelly Bryant, Russ Kennedy and Terry Jay each scored a pair. Singles went to Shawn Dheensaw, a recruit from the Goodwill Intermediates, and Jim Boyd.

Both goalkeepers had sound games. Bill Thomas stopped 40 shots for ;egion while Rod Bannister stopped 34 for Cablevision.

Legion is at home tonight to the strong Coquitlam team which has a 20-12 victory over Burnaby to its credit. Game time at Esquimalt Sports Centre is 8 p.m. and all the regulars with the exception of Brian Bell, who still has one game of a suspension to serve, are expected to dress for Legion.

Jim Northey's goal at 17:41 of the third period gave Richmond Roadrunners an 11-10 win over Burnaby at Richmond, Saturday.

Kip Jarvis fired two goals for the winners. Swan scored four goals to pace Burnaby while Dalmonte added two.

Good beginning for standardbreds

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Sandown Harness Raceway is off to a good beginning in its second season at the Sidney oval, judging by results from the opening holiday weekend.

Under sunny skies and warm temperatures, 2,044 fans welcomed the standarbreds at Saturday's first running and 2,000 came right back for Monday's holiday card.

The mutuel handles were $119,799, Saturday, and $116,998, Monday, which, though not astronomical, were "fair enough" in the judgement of Raceway general manager Jim Keeling.

"We can live with that," he said although it is understandable that Sandown will need better Saturdays and holidays than that during the year to achieve a daily average of about $105,000 which is considered the break-even point on the 65-day season.

The mutuel average for last year was $80,706, by comparison, while the record day at the mutuels was the last, $137,828.

Last year however, it wasn't until the 17th day of the meeting that the mutuel handle hit $100,000. So that is a note on the bright side.

In addition, there were the usual SNAFUs on opening day, but most them were ironed out by Monday when the card went off in about an hour's less time.

And, perhaps to be expected, there were some surprises in the results.

First, it wasn't all his doing, but owner-driver Keith Linton, who dominated the driving scene last season, went without a victory. But maybe not for long.

Linton didn't drive as scheduled Saturday as he had been suspended for three days in Edmonton for arriving late in the paddock; then on Monday, when he did, he showed he was ready for what lies ahead with two seconds and a third in four rides.

Secondly, there was a whopping upset in Monday's feature, the Invitational Handicap one-mile pace when Pat Lundy's Andys Janice, Horse of the Year at Cloverdale, finished up the track in fifth place in the seven-horse field.

Andys Peyton, a four-year old bay gelding, owned and driven by Norman Marks, and making his first start in six weeks, romped home the winner. Andys Peyton returned the best price of the weekend, $42, $13.90 and $7.60, and combined with second-place finisher, B.C. Classy, for an Exactor of $254.50, the best of the meeting.

It was the fifth win of the year for Andys Peyton and the seventh race in a row in which he hasn't been off the board.

On Saturday in the United Way featured one mile pace, Kalamea Brad, an eight-year old bay gelding owned by the Lucky Strike Stable of Edmonton and driven by Grant Hollingsworth, came with a rush in the stretch to win and return $7.60, $4.20 and $4.20.

Joe Hudon, runner-up to Linton in the leading dash drivers race at Cloverdale, and third in percentage, took the early lead here on the weekend with three victories.

Hudon had two on Saturday, Shoot The Works ($4.20) and Spindrift Two ($5.60), and one on Monday, Governors Star Boy ($5.50), in the 10th.

Willie Urquhart was the only driver to score twice on Monday. He was in the bike for Charmin Dusty ($5.30) in the fourth and Senga Rachel ($20.30) in the seventh.

Dusty Counsellor became the first two-time winner of the meeting. Driven by Bill Young, Dusty Counsellor won Saturday and paid $26.40, and came right back on Monday with Miles Armstrong in the sulky, returning $6.00.

Prices were mixed on both days with favorites and longshot dividing honors. Exactors were healthy enough with five payoffs going over the $100 mark Saturday and two on Monday.

On a day on which the track was listed as "fast", the biggest surprise was the victory of Master Charge in the first on Monday. It was like money in the bank as the brown five-year old reeled off a 2:06.4, a remarkable time for a horse of that class (non-winners for a purse of greater than $400 lifetime).

But obviously the track was well listed, because two other horses set lifetime marks — Irish Stadt (2:05.1) in a remarkable easy and convincing victory in the eighth and Andys Peyton (2:05.4) in the feature.

Racing resumes Thursday at 5:30 p.m. There is no Wednesday racing this season. Other racing days this week are Friday at 5:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Radio station CFAX has put up an award for the leading percentage driver, which wil be determined by performance, while a popular driver poll by fan vote will also be undertaken by the radio station.

Saanich Wins

Paul Panky scored both touchdowns to give Saanich a 12-0 victory over Gordon Head, the fifth in six starts for the Saanich Hornets' Peewee Football League leaders.

Second-place Juan de Fuca (5-2) stayed on the leaders' heels by defeating Victoria 18-9.

Dean McMillan scored a pair of majors for Juan de Fuca while Paul Juch scored the other. Neil Ford scored a touchdown for Victoria.

ALL ALONE crossing finish line, jockey Ronnie Franklin tenders victory salute after Spectacular Bid won Preakness Stakes at Pimlico on Saturday. (AP Wirephoto).

Preakness learning lesson for a loser

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Bud Delp realizes the Preakness was another learning experience for jockey Ron Franklin. But he hopes it was for veteran Angel Cordero Jr., too.

Delp's colt, Spectacular Bid, romped to a 5½ length victory under Franklin on Saturday in the richest of 104 Preaknesses, but Cordero's controversial ride aboard Screen King, the third-place finisher, fueled anew the Franklin-Cordero — the kid vs. the veteran — rivalry.

"I hope Mr. Cordero realizes this game is for everybody to play, not just a select few," said Delp on Sunday. "I hope he's been shown the light a little bit and realizes Franklin is a race rider just like him."

The 19-year-old Franklin called Cordero's alleged effort to force him wide on the first turn unsportsmanlike.

"It was a childish act," Delp said. "He was jeopardizing the race. But Ronnie took care of that. He was worried about what Ronnie was doing instead of just riding his own race."

Several times Cordero attempted to force Franklin into the rail during the race, Delp said.

When Franklin's "unsportsmanlike" remark reached Cordero in the jockeys' room, he fumed. "We did not carry Bid out. I was four lengths in front of him. How could I carry him out? Bid came in on me when he went by. He hit me hard enough to cut up my horse."

Flying Paster and General Assembly set the early pace, with Screen King third and Spectacular Bid fourth. With about three-eighths of a mile to go in the 1 3-16 mile test, Spectacular Bid had this second leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown won, giving him a solid chance at becoming the 12th horse in history to capture the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Golden Act, the longest shot in the field of five at 27-1, finished second with Sandy Hawley of Mississauga, Ont., aboard. Screen King, who cut off Flying Paster at the top of the stretch was third, another four lengths back and 1½ lengths in front of Flying Paster. General Assembly faded to last.

The winner, whose time of 1:54 1-5 was only one-fifth of a second off the Pimlico Race Course record set by Canonero II in 1971, also has an opportunity to become the third consecutive Triple Crown champion, following Seattle Slew and Affirmed.

As for the June 9 Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park, Delp said:

"It should be easy. Bid is getting a little bit better all the time. I don't expect him to set any track record in the Belmont because there won't be much to run with him. He'll just lope along in front. I got a machine, a running machine."

From the Preakness field, only Golden Act and Screen King are likely starters for the 1½ mile Belmont. Screen King, however, suffered cuts on his front and hind legs and owner Carl Lizza said he will be certain about the Belmont in four or five days.

LeRoy Jolley, who trains General Assembly, said his colt, who finished second in the Derby, was "too tired" to run in the Belmont. California's Flying Paster, a disappointment in the Derby and Preakness, was an unlikely Belmont starter.

Among the new challengers to Spectacular Bid for the final leg of the three-year-old classics are expected to be Czaravich, winner of four of five starts, Strike The Main, Smarten and Instrument Landing.

Spectacular Bid, owned by the Hawksworth Farm, will carry a winning streak of 12 into the Belmont. The son of Bold Bidder returned a $2.20 and $2.20 payoff — there was no show betting — to backers in the crowd of 72,607.

Golden Act, who was third in the Derby, paid $5.60.

Guidry excuse: too many bats

By The Canadian Press

Ron Guidry had one excuse.

"My control was too good — I kept hitting their bats," the New York pitcher said Monday night after surrendering a career-high 13 hits as Detroit Tigers defeated the Cy Young Award winner and the Yankees 3-1 in American League baseball action.

"They were just hitting the ball," said Guidry, 4-3, who had never given up more than 10 hits in one game. "I thought I threw well.

"I kept the ball in play and they just got a few hits that fell in, and that's the name of the game."

Guidry now has lost as many games as he did all of last season when he posted a 25-3 record to win the Cy Young as the league's top hurler.

Elsewhere Monday, Toronto Blue Jays whipped Cleveland Indians 8-1, Minnesota Twins downed Texas Rangers 7-6 and Seattle Mariners outlasted Kansas City Royals 12-7.

Detroit's winning pitcher Monday, Jack Billingham, scattered eight hits to improve his record to 4-3.

Meanwhile, in the National League, Bob Horner's three-run homer paced Atlanta Braves to a 7-5 victory over Houston, while Mike Schmidt's 15th home run of the season, tops in the major leagues, led Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals.

In other National League games, San Diego Padres edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 and Pittsburgh Pirates topped Montreal Expos 4-2.

"I don't think anything else can go wrong," said Horner, the 1978 rookie-of-the-year in the NL who was sidelined in the first game of the season with an ankle injury and returned to the Braves' lineup just last week. "It all happened at once, the ankle injury and the arbitration."

Horner, whose home run was his third this season, currently is involved in a contract dispute with the Braves. It has gone to arbitration but there's been no indication of a settlement date.

"In my situation, I have something to try to prove to myself," added Horner, the NL rookie of the year in 1978.

Rutledge, Dempsey lean on consistency

Consistency paid off for Jimmy Rutledge.

The freshman professional who plays out of both Uplands and Cedar Hill, scored a pair of successive 64s to capture top honors in the annual Labatt's Cedar Hill Open golf tournament.

Rutledge won $500 for his six-under-par 128 performance after finishing two strokes ahead of Rick Gibson, the former Victoria junior champion now living in Vancouver, and John Morgan, another professional who plays out of Uplands.

Gibson won low amateur honors, beating out Vancouver Island Open champion Dave Mick of Colwood by one stroke.

Mick, who opened with a one-over-par 68 Saturday, finished with a 63 to post the low round Sunday.

Ceder Hill's John Dempsey, a 13-handicapper, also struck a consistent note to win the John Merriman Memorial Trophy as the low net winner. Dempsey posted a pair of 71s to cruise home a five-shot winner over clubmate Lloyd Stevens.

Berry and Roxburgh were four up after nine holes, remained four up after 18, and were three up after 27.

Rose tops derby

John Rose caught a 14-pound, four-ounce Chinook salmon Sunday to take top honors in the Sunburn Derby sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association's Chinook Club. Bill Grimshaw (13:08) was runnerup while John Sadler (7:03) was third. Harmon Leong won the hiddenweight prize.

Youth serves Canada

MADRID (CP) — Canada won the gold medal at a four-country women's field hockey tournament Sunday after drawing 0-0 with Spain in the final game.

The Canadians, who finished the tournament with five points, previously drubbed both Belgium (4-1) and France (4-0) before giving up a point to the winless Spaniards.

The game marked the end of a European tour for the young Canadian squad that will returned home Monday to begin final preparations for the world championships at Vancouver in August.

Canada carried the attack in Sunday's game, allowing the opposition only one shot at goaltender Eloise Samuels of Montreal.

"They had seen us play for two games and did a very good job of figuring us out," said national coach Marina van der Merwe of Toronto. "In other games we had very good luck breaking our forwards loose, but today the Spaniards marked our players closely and it was as if we were playing without our forward line."

Canada's best scoring opportunity came late in the first period when Sandy Tufnail of Burnaby, who had scored in each of the previous two games, broke in alone off left wing. But her raised shot was stopped by Spain's goaltender, Rosario Coll, who was outstanding throughout the contest.

Saturday against the French side it was a different contest as the Canadian scored early and often in each period with Sheila Forshaw of Ontario scoring twice — once in each half.

Tufnail and 17-year-old Dana Sinclair of Vancouver were the other scorers.

CANADIAN RIVAL

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Marvin Hagler, top-ranked United States middleweight boxing title contender, will meet Gerard Boucher of Montreal on a fight card here May 25.

More magic from Lopez putter

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Mickey Wright, the veteran whose name was once synonymous with the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour. Nancy Lopez, the current 22-year-old phenom. Going head-to-head in a sudden death playoff.

"I never considered her a hero, but I admired her greatly," Lopez said after she captured her fourth victory of the year the hard way by surviving a five-way playoff, which included the veteran Wright, in the $100,000 LPGA event at the Upper Montclair Country Club.

"I wasn't there when she won all of those tournaments, but it must be great to be admired like she is," Nancy added.

Wright, 44, hasn't played regularly on the tour in close to a decade, but her past achievements speak quite loudly. She holds the record with 82 career victories, including 13 in 1963, a mark Lopez put a dent in last year with nine triumphs.

Lopez, Wright, Hollis Stacy, Jo Ann Washam and virtual unknown Bonnie Bryant tied at three-under par 216 after the regulation 54 holes.

Lopez was the only one with a talented enough putter to withstand Wright's tee shot on the first extra hole, the par-3, 165-yard 15th. Her shot landed a remarkable 18 inches from the cup.

Lopez, who ran her streak to two straight victories in defending her title, rammed in an 18-footer and then sealed the win with a 10-foot birdie putt on the next hole. It was at exactly this time a year ago that Lopez chalked up her second successive victory and went on to make it a record five straight.

Canadian Sandra Post finished with a 219 total after a closing-round 69 worth $3,150. Cathy Sherk of Port Colborne, Ont., had a 75—230, good for $155 while Dale Shaw of Victoria, the only other Canadian on the LPGA tour, missed the 36-hole cut Saturday after scoring her second successive 79.

Dream shot works for Al

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — It was a grand plan and Al Geiberger dreamed of it often — the final hole of the United States Open. He would lash a long iron to within an inch of the cup.

There would be cheers and champagne and a tap-in and a bunch of money.

Well, it wasn't the Open, or the last hole, or even a cinch. But he did what he dreamed of, and it won him the $300,000 Colonial Invitation golf title.

With his four-shot lead eroded, his confidence in shambles and the wolves at his heels, the lanky Californian slapped a five-iron two inches shy of a hole-in-one on the par-three 16th hole. He picked up an easy a birdie, restored his confidence and went on to post a one-shot victory Sunday in a traumatic final round.

It left Don January, with a 65, and Gene Littler, with a 68, frustrated runners-up.

Exaggerating just slightly, Geiberger called it a victory for the old folks. January is 49 and Littler 48, and, at 41, Geiberger is at least seasoned, if not spicy.

It was worth $54,000 which, "will go good with the $5,000 that I'd won so far this year," Geiberger said.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, who closed with a final-round 72 for a 283 total, won $2,042.

Porthcawl on experience, Bridgend with awareness

Castaways of the Island Rugby Union gave it a good try against Porthcawl of Wales in an exhibition rugby match at Royal Athletic Park Monday afternoon but the experience of the visitors proved the difference in a 22-9 victory.

It was the second exhibition game for Vancouver Island clubs against a Welsh team on the weekend. On Saturday, Bridgend of Wales defeated Victoria's Crimson Tide 21-6.

Castaways and Porthcawl got off to a nervous beginning and both clubs played with an over-anxiousness through most of the first half which ended in a virtual stalemate, 4-3.

Castaways gave as good as they received before the intermission, missing several good scoring opportunites as both clubs were obviously feeling out the other.

At the beginning of the second half, it was Castaways who held most of the momentum in the first 15 minutes. They took the issue squarely to the visitors, hemmed Porthcawl in their own end of the field and had several good chances. But the points wouldn't come in the face of a stiff Welsh defence.

Then, suddenly, the tide turned and Porthcawl went on the attack running the score up to their final tally before Castaways were to strike again.

And it was an electrifying 50-yard run by Daryl Stubbs which brought Castaways back. Stubbs passed off to Mike Stewart who dived over between the posts for the score.

Mark Tinckard, who earlier had kicked a penalty goal, kicked the convert for Castaways.

Spurred on by Stubbs' break-through, Castaways came on strong again near the close, but failed to add to their total.

Norman Rae scored a try, a penalty goal and a drop goal for Porthcawl; Nigel Carpanini and Clyde Williams each had a try and Wynn Jones kicked two converts for the visitors.

Castaways will meet Chicago Griffeons of the Chicago League in a first and second team match-up at UVic's Wallace Field, Friday. The match between the seconds will start at 7 p.m. with the first teams to meet immediately afterwards.

In Saturday's game, Bridgend took the field without front-liners J.P.R. Williams, Ian Lewis and Steve Fenwick, all unable to make the trip to Canada, but had no problem in dominating action.

After last week's upset at the hands of a mainland side, coach John Lloyd felt his charges were better prepared mentally and technically for Crimson Tide.

"After the upset, we decided to concentrate on moving the ball better up front," he said. "It seemed to work.

"And in Victoria, I knew we'd be in for a fight."

Bridgend limited Tide two a pair of penalty goals by Murray Allen of James Bay.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500, regarded as the showcase of the U.S. Auto Club's schedule for years, has turned into a nightmare for the organization as controversy overshadows the question of who will win Sunday's $1-million race.

Jerry Karl, one of the drivers bumped from the field, filed a protest over the time trials on Monday. He said he and others in racing have "become victims of USAC's incompetence in enforcing its rules."

The denial of seven protests involving decisions made during the time trials was announced Monday by chief steward Tom Binford following a day of hearings on the protests.

Most of the protests involved efforts by USAC to enforce its regulations restricting engine power and claims that those regulations were changed last Sunday in the middle of the time trials which determine the 33-car field.

As it stands now, Rick Mears holds the pole position with a time of 193.736 miles an hour. Tom Sneva and Al Unser round out the front row. Bobby Unser, Gordon Jancock and A. J. Foyt are in the second row. Wally Dallenbach, Johnny Rutherford and Johnny Parsons are in the third row.

Cliff Hucul of Prince George will start from the sixth row with a qualifying time of 186.200 m.p.h. His time in a McLaren-Offenhauser was 18th best.

Edmonton native, Eldon Rasmussen qualified for the 33rd and last spot with a time of 183.927 m.p.h.

Binford, referee Art Meyers, USAC technical director Jack Beckley and race registar Bob Cassaday held a closed-door hearing on the protests. They rejected claims that the regulations were changed since the track opened this month.

Binford said a notice stating competitors can qualify with at least an opening of 1.47 inches in an exhaust pipe that helps limit the amount of boost an engine receives was a warning to prevent further attempts to violate the rules and not a new standard.

The protestors, who included drivers Larry Cannon, Al Loquasto and Spike Gehlhausen, disagreed.

"Everything we told them was twisted to hit their fancy," said Loquasto, who was asking for a chance to re-qualify claiming a change in specifications.

"I'm talking to my lawyer," Loquasto said. "It's too bad that people running the biggest race in the world who are intelligent can make such a bad call."

Police story ends in win for Caps

There are penalties for interfering with the law. Likewise when the shoe is on the other foot.

The call from police headquarters Sunday wrote an unexpected ending to the finish of the Heywood Men's Softball League's invitational softball tournament.

The penalty was a forfeit by the police-laden Ingraham Hotel team and the tournament championship for Capital Builders.

Ingraham forfeited the deciding game of the 10-team tournament played at Heywood and Central Parks at the weekend when the hotel team's lineup was depleted because several of the softball-playing police had to report for work.

The Builders, bouncing back through the losers' bracket in the double-knockout event, handed previously-unbeaten Ingraham its only loss, 8-0, behind the shutout pitching of Marv Carver. That forced another game but the hotelmen were unable to field a lineup and were forced to forfeit the decider.

Fourth-place finishing Victoria Athletics defeated Capital Builders 5-1 Saturday to deal the eventual winners their only loss.

Ross Swanton, one of the policemen in the Ingraham lineup, was voted the tournament's most valuable player after batting .545. Capital's Barry Milne captured the batting trophy with a .565 average while Carver, who did not allow a run in three games, was named the outstanding pitcher.

Labatts finished third.

Cricket draw

Incogs and Nanaimo played to a draw Sunday in Victoria and District Cricket Association play at St. Michael's University School.

Eric Kjekstad batted a "century", 100 not out, to set the pace as Incogs reached 179 for four wickets declared. Jeremy Goodwin added 57.

Nanaimo reached 104 for seven with Dennis Shaw contributing 35.

Other weekend scores were not reported.

Gino returns

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Gino Cappelletti, a high-scoring pass receiver and kicker in the American Football League, has returned to New England Patriots as special teams coach.

Vistas stretch unbeaten mark

Vancouver Island Vistas are right back where they left off last season in the Pacific Northwest Soccer League.

Undefeated in 10 games last year, Vistas opened this year's campaign with a 2-0 victory over Fraser Valley All-Stars on the mainland on Monday. And that makes it 11 straight games without defeat.

Under the guidance of Ray Telford and Bob English this season, Vistas had things more or less their own way after getting the lead on a goal by Johnny Leier at the 33-minute mark.

Steve Forsland supplied the clincher with a penalty shot at 54 minutes. The penalty came when a Fraser Valley player grabbed Forsland's shot which was headed for a certain goal.

Both goalkeepers for Vistas, Stan Akam and Ted Van Wayes, who shared duties, played well while another outstanding feature insofar as Vistas was concerned was the play of three younger players.

Russ Rimmer, Drew Porter and Mike Collis performed admirably in their first full test.

Vistas scheduled league game for Sunday has been cancelled because of the appearance here of Bristol City next Monday.

In preparation for that game the all-stars, who will be picked from Vistas, Victoria West and Victoria Athletics, will have a trial match on Wednesday. Site has not yet been determined.

Vistas next league game now will take place at Vancouver, June 3, against the Whitecap reserves.

Georgio's day just perfect

By The Canadian Press

It was Georgio Chinaglia Day and 46,344 fans turned out at Giants Stadium to honor the New York Cosmos star.

The Italian striker, leading active scorer in the North American Soccer League, didn't let them down despite some early-moment jitters.

"I was as nervous as I've ever been in my life," admitted Chinaglia, who still managed two goals to pace the Cosmos to a 3-1 win over Tulsa Roughnecks. "You can ask the other players — I was tearing my hair out.

"I didn't even want the ball the first five minutes," added Chinaglia, who last year set an NASL scoring record with 34 goals in 30 games. "But after 10 minutes, I began to feel good. I just missed a header and when that happened I knew everything would be all right."

Elsewhere Sunday, Rochester Lancers blanked Atlanta Chiefs 2-0, Fort Lauderdale Strikers dumped Minnesota Kicks 4-1 and Houston Hurricane defeated Chicago Sting 2-1.

On Saturday, Toronto Blizzard made it two in a row with a 1-0 win over Dallas Tornado, Detroit Express whipped Edmonton Drillers 4-1, Memphis Rogues beat New England Tea Men 3-1, while Los Angeles Aztecs edged Tampa Bay Rowdies, Portland Timbers blanked California Surf and Seattle Sounders shut out San Jose Earthquakes by identical 1-0 scores.

After the loss, San Jose coach Terry Fisher was fired.

All was not well for the Cosmos in the early going Sunday as Tulsa's Terry Derracott slipped a penalty kick past Cosmos goalkeeper Jack Brand with just 4:48 elapsed.

The Roughnecks' lead was shortlived, however. At 16:55, Dennis Tueart tied it, taking passes from Mark Liveric and Santiago Formoso and blasting a 15-foot shot through the arms of Tulsa goalkeeper Colin Boulton.

Then Chinaglia went to work, scoring twice in less than five minutes to give the Cosmos their eighth victory in nine decisions.

Chinaglia's first goal came at the 32:15 mark when he put the ball into an open net after passes from Carlos Alberto and Tueart.

At 36:52, Chinaglia added an insurance goal — his 11th of the season — on a penalty shot. The score was set up when Tulsa defender Sammy Champan fouled Chinaglia in the box.

The victory was the eighth in nine games for the Cosmos, who lead the National Conference East Division.

In an exhibition game at Prince George, goals by Steve Nesin and Carl Shearer carried Vancouver Whitecaps to a 2-0 exhibition win over North Cariboo Soccer Association all-stars here Sunday.

The Whitecaps, who lead the North American Soccer League's western division, went with just a handful of regular players and used mostly reserve players.

Nesin scored midway through the first half when he converted a rebound and Shearer tallied five minutes into the second half when he headed the ball on a corner kick.

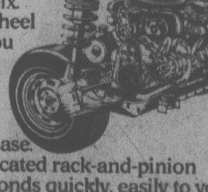
FRONT-WHEELIN' INTO THE 80's

1980 Phoenix SJ 5-Door Hatchback Sedan.
1980 Phoenix LJ 2-Door Coupe

New 1980 front-wheel-drive Pontiac Phoenix!

1980 Phoenix has to be the most remarkable, most exciting new Pontiac in years. Has there ever been a Pontiac like it? You won't think so, when you go front-wheelin' in a new Phoenix.

Front-wheel drive pulls you around corners and into parking spaces with sure-footed ease.



Sophisticated rack-and-pinion steering responds quickly, easily to your commands.

MacPherson strut front suspension helps deliver the smooth kind of ride you'd expect in a much bigger car.

The newness goes on and on but, for all that, Phoenix is still a Pontiac — with high-spirited performance, Radial Tuned Suspension and Pontiac's flair for comfort and luxury.

You may wonder how any car this trim could be this roomy. The surprising amount of room for up to five people is due, partly, to ingenious computer-assisted designing and a space-saving, transverse-mounted engine.

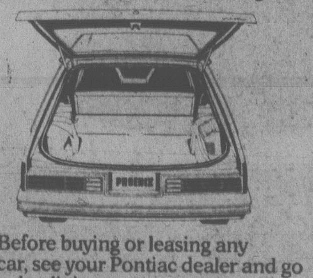
What about fuel economy? It is excellent! A new 4-cylinder Phoenix with optional automatic transmission has fuel consumption/economy estimates of 9.1 litres per 100 km (comparative rating)*. This means much better fuel economy than a comparably-equipped 6-cylinder 1979 model...and better power-to-weight ratio. For example, the new 4-cylinder Phoenix, with automatic transmission, will accelerate from 0 to 100 KPH as quickly as its comparably-equipped '79 6-cylinder predecessor.

A very exclusive instrument panel with brushed aluminum applique.

Standard for 1980 is a 2.5 litre 4-cylinder engine with floor-mounted 4-speed manual transmission. A 2.8 litre V6 and automatic transmission are optional.

1980 Phoenix arrives two distinct ways: as a stylishly formal 2-door Coupe and a stylishly functional 5-door Hatchback Sedan, both with luxury LJ versions. The Coupe and the Hatchback Sedan have a sporty SJ package available.

The 5-door Hatchback Sedan offers an optional "security panel" which is standard on the LJ Hatchback. This is a hinged rear shelf which covers the trunk; it can be lifted out when folding down the rear seat to reveal a carpeted and really cavernous cargo area.



Before buying or leasing any new car, see your Pontiac dealer and go front-wheelin'.

Nobody's got it like Pontiac's 1980 Phoenix!

*Based on Transport Canada approved test methods. These fuel consumption/economy figures are estimates which may be subject to revision. The actual results you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and optional equipment.

Some of the equipment shown or mentioned is optional at extra cost.

Seaboard takes mainland tourney

NEW WESTMINSTER — Seaboard Construction from Victoria's Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League, doing it the hard way, captured top honors Sunday in the annual Molson's invitational tournament here.

Knocked into the losers' bracket after losing a 1-0 decision to Port Coquitlam on Saturday, Seaboard came back to win four straight. They beat Victoria Tally-Ho 4-0, Alberni Athletics 3-2, Vancouver Nite and Day 7-3 and then got their revenge by blanked Port Coquitlam 4-0 in the decider.

Seaboard's Randy Jackson was named the tournament's top pitcher and also was selected to the all-star team along with teammates Mike Taaffe and Scott Sinclair.

Pakos wrecks Quadra

George Pakos of Farmers was a one-man wrecking crew in Senior Amateur Baseball League action on the weekend.

All Pakos did as Farmers won a pair from Quadra Warehouse 18-1 and 9-8 on Sunday was to go five for seven at the plate, hit two home runs, drive in eight and score five himself.

Terry Adams got the win, his first, in the opener and Ron Holmes the victory, his second in the second game of the twin bill.

On Monday there was another bombing. This time Lumberworld did it to Capital Radiators, 20-4. Mark Garrett was the big stick for Lumberworld by batting in four runs.

Roy and Camaro hot combination

The others drivers didn't intend it that way, but Saturday turned out to be "Roy Haslam Night" at Western Speedway.

Last year's International Drivers' Challenge champion, Haslam swept the boards of all honors with his 1978 Camaro.

He established a track record for the new limited open super-stocks with a time of 16.975 then won the trophy dash, fast heat and the 30-lap main event.

Taking the lead on the 20th lap, he breezed to victory with Tony Johnson finishing second and Jim Caudwell third.

In the co-feature, Dave Andrews won the 10-lap main event for jalopies but then lost his track victory in the committee room. Andrews' car was ruled to have an illegal suspension. Andrews was disqualified and top money went to Don Buchner.

It was a rough night in more ways than one for Andrews.

He was involved in one of the more spectacular mishaps of the evening. With a crowd of 2,968 watching, Andrews nearly hit the grandstand wall during the jalopy trophy dash. In an effort to avoid trouble, he collided with Bruce Aldridge.

Aldridge's machine caught fire but the track safety crew quickly doused the flames.

600 party-goers routed, 16 arrested

PENTICTON (CP) — Sixteen persons were arrested early Monday on charges of obstructing police after RCMP broke up three parties involving up to 600 persons.

Bail was set at $300 cash for each of those charged. They were to appear in court today.

Police said 15, from the Vancouver area, are in their late teens or early 20s. Also charged is Vince Nicolson, 30, manager of the Laguna Motel, one of the two motels where police broke up parties.

A spokesman said that parties at two motels and a nearby trailer park became unruly, with 150 to 200 persons at each party. He said that all available police, auxiliaries and the force's three police dogs were used.

The trouble was centred along the motel-campground strip along Highway 97.

The spokesman said that a few bottles were thrown "but I guess that's to be expected." There were no injuries.

He said the 16 were arrested after they ignored police orders to disperse. Police also towed 24 vehicles that illegally parked in the area.

Extensive damage was done by the revellers, but no estimate was available, the spokesman said.

He said that in unrelated incidents, five other persons were arrested for being drunk in a public place.

Meanwhile, at Chase, about 40 kilometres northeast of Kamloops, RCMP arrested 26 Kamloops residents while breaking up four drinking parties Saturday night at Scotch Creek campground on Shuswap Lake.

Police said some were charged with being drunk in a public place, while the rest were charged with causing a disturbance.

RCMP said the nine-hour patrol involved 14 policemen and two police dogs from Kamloops used for "scare tactics."

No property damage was reported and there were no injuries.

Constable Lother Bretfeld said the arrests were made to convince people that Scotch Creek no longer is the place for wild noisy parties. The campground can accommodate 2,000 persons.

"Their good time consists of consuming great quntities of liquor and disturbing other campers," Bretfeld said. "We're not tolerating it any longer."

Derailed train closes highway

HOPE (CP) — Eight CP Rail cars carrying sulphur derailed early Sunday 39 kilometres north here, forcing closure of the Trans Canada Highway for about three hours.

A highways department official said the derailed cars were between the tracks and the Fraser River, and although none were on the highway, the road was closed from Hope to Spences Bridge because of the fumes from the burning sulphur.

There were no injuries reported.

Railway spokesman Bob Ferguson said the cars each carry 100 tons of sulphur.

He said the front section of the 100-car train was pulled clear to Vancouver, while the rear portion which remained on the track was pulled north to North Bend, a railway stop near Boston Bar.

Preliminary investigation suggested that a wheel bearing in one of the cars led to the derailment, Ferguson said.

Traffic was routed onto the Canadian National Railways track until the CP Rail line was reopened about midnight Sunday, Ferguson said.

Three to get valor awards

A 20-year-old Pender Island woman and two Coast Guard divers based in Victoria are among six persons from across Canada nominated for national valor awards.

Sandra Klein, Shawn McLaughlin, 24, of 4631 Pipeline, and David Illing, 20, of 1233 Monterey will receive the awards from Governor-General Ed Schreyer in Ottawa Friday in conjunction with National Transportation Week observance.

Miss Klein is credited with saving the life of a Nanaimo man who was forced to jump overboard when his sailboat caught fire in Georgia Strait last Dec. 29.

She and her family were returning home in their 40-foot boat from Christmas vacations on Sechelt Peninsula when they heard a radio report of a boat in distress about 20 miles across the strait.

Climbing into a 17-foot whaler they had in tow, Miss Klein and her father, an electrical contractor on Pender Island, raced to the scene, arriving at the same time as a rescue helicopter and navy boat.

The crew off the navy boat threw out a line to the man in the water but he was unable to grab hold of it and Miss Klein, wearing a wet suit, jumped in and rescued him.

McLaughlin and Illing are being honored for the work they did when the Coast Guard icebreaker Camsell was holed by an ice floe in Requisite Channel in the Beaufort Sea last Sept. 10.

The two divers made numerous descents to plug the holes with canvasses, mattresses and collision mats, working under almost impossible conditions.

They could remain underwater only for short periods because their breathing apparatus regulators would freeze, forcing them to surface and thaw them out with boiling water before returning to complete the repairs.

Much of the success of the damage control countermeasures taken were due to the efforts of the two.

Gail Bunn, the purser aboard the PWA plane that crashed in Cranbrook last year is one of three others who will receive valor awards. The other two are from Eastern Canada.

Klein, McLaughlin and Illing will also be honored at a Transportation Week luncheon in Vancouver May 31 when they will receive regional valor awards.

Soap, Carbaryl for gypsy moth?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation knocked on doors in the city's Kitsilano area Saturday, asking residents if they want their trees and bushes sprayed with an insecticide soap to combat the gypsy moth.

The environmental group said members have signed up some 300 homeowners who want to have their foliage sprayed with the soap which they say is much safer than the controversial pesticide Carbaryl for halting the spread of the destructive insect.

Meanwhile, the federal agriculture department, which believes the soap's effectiveness is limited, was also conducting a door-to-door campaign asking residents if they wanted their yards sprayed with Carbaryl.

A Greenpeace spokesman said the environmental group's spraying method costs about $30 for every backyard, but the organization plans to ask the city at a council meeting Wednesday to pay the bill.

If council refuses, he said, Greenpeace will be stuck.

Officials of the federal agriculture department met with representatives of the provincial government and the city's health and parks departments last week and agreed that a voluntary system of spraying carbyral would be used if 80 per cent of the residents polled door-to-door agreed.

Those residents opposed would not have their yards sprayed.

Claims unite Indians

. . . animosities buried

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Representatives from most of British Columbia's 25 native Indian groups set up an aboriginal council Sunday to present a united front to provincial and federal governments in negotiating land claims.

Bill Wilson, president of the United Native Nations, said the formation of the council was one of the most significant political moves by native Indians in B.C. in the last 60 years.

He said it shows that Indians have buried animosities stemming from their differences to present a united front in bargaining for land claims.

A spokesman said the council will probably hire field workers to help individual bands in separate negotiations over aboriginal rights and land claims.

Representatives said one of the council's aims is to fund individual bands which require land claims settlements tailored to their particular needs.

Representatives from the Native Brotherhood, United Native Nations and the Alliance, three of B.C.'s four largest Indian groups, will act as council administrators until funding is arranged and co-ordination established.

Lina's dancing for joy

elizabeth forbes

Lina de Guevara is an abbreviated version of her maiden name.

She keeps it because, as a career woman, those she works with can remember and repeat it far more easily then her full name.

The full name would include Ledron as well as Cambiazo, which would make it Lina Ledron de Guevara Cambiazo.

"Much too long and too complicated for professional use,"

Lina de Guevara came to Victoria in August, 1977, with her husband, Celso Cambiazo, now in the engineering department at Camosun College, and their teenage son and daughter, Christian and Valentine.

Political unrest in Chile, their homeland, decided this family to immigrate to Canada.

First choice of a place to make a new home was Toronto.

"We soon found it was too big and too impersonal," Lina de Guevara says, "so we decided to come on to the Pacific coast and to Victoria."

It was a good move, she adds.

"Victoria is a well-blessed city. It has everything. It is beautiful, not too big, and the woodlands are only a short distance away.

"We also find this part of Vancouver Island something like southern Chile, and that makes us feel at home."

This interesting woman gained her professional experience as an actress, writer, teacher and dance instructor in South America.

She wrote plays and television scripts for children and conducted acting workshops not only for children but for adults who, as directors, specialized in children's theatre.

Since coming to Victoria she has been hesitant about using her talents as an actress mainly because, as she put it, "while I speak English very well, it is with an accent."

She has, however, been teaching Afro-Brazilian dancing at the YM-YWCA and at Camosun College and she is presently working as theatre school instructor at Bastion Theatre.

Her interest in Afro-Brazilian dancing started when she spent three years in Cuba.

"People of African descent in that country kept a part of their culture alive through the medium of the dance.

"I met many of them and I worked with them in a theatre group."

Returning to Chile she began to teach Afro-Brazilian dancing, based on what she had seen and learned in Cuba but using Brazilian instead of Cuban music.

"It's all done to the throb and beat of the drums," she explains.

"The drums create an euphoric effect that inspires creativity in the dancers and reaches out to audiences, too."

Earlier this month Lina de Guevara was in New York City where she conducted a week-long workshop at New York University on Afro-Brazilian movement and the origins of creative activity.

That was at the invitation of Richard Schechner whom she met when he was studying theatre in Latin American cities for a theatre and drama review magazine.

Now she is back in Victoria again and preparing to teach drama for senior classes (15 to 20) for Bastion Theatre's Summer 1979 Theatre School session in August.

In all that she does, Lina de Guevara holds to the belief that a theatre person not only must have a pioneer spirit but must also be involved in the whole picture.

"It's a way of life!"

In the months ahead her plans include continuing classes at the YM-YWCA, conducting teaching workshops for Kaleidoscope Theatre and in schools and, in the spring of 1980, doing a six-week course for the theatre division at University of Victoria.

"I'm still finding my way," she says.

Then she adds with quiet confidence "as a person who has immigrated I'm starting all over again. I've got a second chance in everything!"

Postscript: Further details about the Bastion Theatre Summer 1979 Theatre School session and the de Guevara drama classes for seniors, are available by phoning Bastion Theatre, 386-8301 or by writing the theatre, 1002 Wharf Street, Victoria, B.C. V8W 1T4.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Saul Levine, psychiatrist; Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I'm a 13-year-old girl and will be going into high school in September. The problem is I have to have a physical and I don't like doctors examining me. Can you tell me what he will do?

ANSWER: Having a physical examination for high school means you are growing up and soon will be assuming more responsibility for your own health care. A physical examination will include an examination of your eyes, nose, throat and ears. The doctor will listen to your chest so he can tell if your heart and lungs are normal. He may palpate your stomach and test your reflexes with a rubber hammer. He wants to find out if you are fit and healthy so you can participate in physical education and sports programs.

The examination may also include a urine test and a blood test. He may take some blood from a finger prick or draw some from a vein. An important part of the physical will be to give you any booster immunization shots you may need.

While this sounds complicated and involved it is very straightforward. There are usually two things that bother people about physicals. First, they do not like getting needles. They don't like having to undress. They are shy about this intrusion on their privacy.

Doctors are aware their patients feel this way and should try to make it as comfortable as possible. All discomfort cannot be avoided, but you can help the doctor by telling him you are shy and letting him know how you feel.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I have the biggest problem in the world. I am 13-year-old ugly and fat female who is hated by everyone. I have three or four friends but that is all, and all these are way better-looking tham I am.

I am of a different color and I guess that's why no one likes me. I am scared of going anywhere like to camp or out to play a game or jog because everyone calls me names. I love meeting new friends but I have a fear inside me. I hate myself so much that I can kill myself.

I have tried talking to my best friend but I don't have enough guts. This is something nobody else knows, not even my mom and I don't wish to tell her. Please tell me what to do. I have suffered too much.

ANSWER: This is certainly a sad letter, and you obviously need some help soon. But there are a couple of contradictory points you make: You say that nobody likes you, yet you mention a "best friend" and three or four other friends: you can't have it both ways. Three or four friends is a good solid number of people who care for you.

You also say that you have nobody to help you with these feelings, yet you specifically reject telling your best friend or your mother. If these closest to you aren't let in on your pain, how can they even begin to help you?

You sound as though you don't like your own appearance, color or personality. The feelings you attribute to others about yourself seem especially prominent in your own mind. In other words you may be your own worst enemy.

You need to sit down with someone who can help you see your strong points and work on improving those parts of your personality that dissatisfy you. We all are critical of ouselves at times, and in fact this can be helpful. It can motivate us to work on being "better" in a variety of areas.

But at times, self-criticism can be carried to an extreme, and what we find then is an individual who is depressed, paralyzed with fear and generally miserable. Most cities in Canada have youth clincis or agencies that handle adolescent problems. If you have difficulty ask your school counsellor or family doctor or minister.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school junior. A year ago I was raped on my way to school. I believe I have dealt with the situation very well, but my problem is this: Am I still considered a virgin?

I realize that technically and physically I probably am not, but since this was done without my consent and co-operation, in another way of looking at it I'm still a virgin. (I never "gave" myself to anyone. My virginity was taken from me.)

This question has bothered me a lot and I hope you can give me an answer since I respect your opinion very much.

I am signing my real name, but if you print this, please sign it

— WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Putting the physical and technical aspects aside, you are as virtuous as a virgin. And you certainly may consider yourself virginal.

DEAR ABBY: KEEPING FIT asked why so many motorists are abusive to joggers. (Someone yelled at him: "Hey, you jerk, get off the street — what are you' trying to prove?")

You should have mentioned that most joggers jog down the centre of the street, paying no attention to traffic signals and behaving in general as though they owned the street!

If a passing motorist honks his horn and signals for the jogger to move over to the side of the road, the jogger pays no attention whatsoever.

My sympathy is with the motorist — not the jogger!

FAIR

DEAR FAIR: My mail has been running 50 to 1 in favor of the motorist. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for a chance to sound off about joggers. They are a terrible nuisance. Why must they use the streets to jog? What's wrong with joging in parks? Or on a football field? Joggers not only endanger their own lives, but they cause motorists to swerve to avoid hitting them, endangering others.

Joggers run right down the middle of the road, darting in front of oncoming cars so they don't have to break their stride or slacken their pace. They are a hazard to all motorists. Why can't they run on sidewalks and obey the traffic rules like pedestrians? Better yet, why don't they do as I do and jog at home (in place) in my living room?

I'm as health-conscious as the next guy, but I'm no exhibitionist.

HEALTH NUT

DEAR ABBY: My husband LOVES to look at female joggers. They turn him on! He gets so exicted when he sees a woman jogging he can hardly keep his car under control. He says there is something about the rhythm of the female body bobbing up and down that excites him. So far, he hasn't run off the road or hit another car or a pedestrian, but I'm afraid his luck will run out soon.

He can hardly wait for summer — when joggers wear less and show more.

Me? I wish they'd outlaw all jogging in city streets!

ANTI-JOGGERS

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to get in my two cents' worth about runners and joggers. If it's exercise they want, why don't they go to a gym or exercise at home? It's a lot healthier. Those half-naked show-offs run on heavily traveled streets under the pretense of "keeping fit," while they fill their lungs with exhaust from cars and buses.

Not to mention the punisment they give their feet, ankles, knees and hips. I've had it with those exhibitionistic idiots!

Why does teetotaller have puffy eyes?

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

I wake up every morning looking as if I've been out on an all-night binge. My eyes are puffy and heavy. I don't drink any alcohol. What can I do about this? — Mrs. G. J.

DEAR MRS J.:

If fatigue caused by lack of sleep is a factor, you are best able to identify this cause of puffy eyes. Sometimes an undisclosed allergy may be responsible. Cosmetics, creams, eye shadow, eye liners and eyelash elongators may also be the culprits.

Nail polish, although seemingly far removed from the eyes, is a common offender. Hair dyes and hair sprays must also be considered.

There is always the possibility that your pillows, or even your sheets, may produce an allergic response. Sometimes, using a milder soap or detergent for the bed sheets may eliminate such an allergic reaction.

Some eye drops and antibiotic ointments can cause such puffiness, or edema, of the eyelids.

There are some medical conditions that can cause such swellings. Chronic lung, heart and kidney disease can, too, be responsible for the persistent swelling of the eyelids. These are far less common than the allergic causes. Of course, they can be readily ruled out by your doctor as the reason for your problem.

Our child was born with a club foot. He is being treated and we are given the assurance that he will eventually be fine. We could use your added support, however, so we can feel this is true. — Mr. and Mrs. P. H.

DEAR MR. & MRS. H.:

I add my assurance to that of your doctor that your child's club foot will eventually be corrected. With assiduous care, he will undoubtedly grow up to be a healthy young man without any limitation of activity.

A club foot is a birth defect which occurs in about one out of 1,000 cases. It is readily recognized at birth because the foot is seen to be rotated upward or inward. The foot itself is normal, but the tendons, muscles and ligaments do not hold it in its proper position.

Treatment is a combined one. The doctor and the orthopedist (bone specialist) co-ordinate their efforts to re-align the tight ligaments and muscles. The condition is treated with plastic casts and with special metal bars that are attached to the infant's shoes.

The results are very satisfactory. Only in rare instances is surgery resorted to and this is done only after a long period of conservative treatment is actively tried.

Mention the word squid, and the resulting image is that of a horrible, tentacled monster. However, squid are perfectly harmless — in a variety of recipes, that is. This unique mollusk has a rich-flavored meat, and is delicious stuffed, cooked, or in salads.

Shellfish-a-Plenty contains several squid recipes that are intended for the more adventurous diner. In addition, this booklet offers suggestions for serving crab, lobster, shrimp, and oysters.

That's Life is a 40-page pamphlet that provides the reader with a humorous look at the history of life insurance. Life insurance originated in ancient Rome, where soldiers led lives that were filled with adventure and danger.

The old Roman Empire acquired much of its wealth by invading and looting neighboring countries. Occasionally, of course, a Roman soldier would be killed during these operations. This would cause untold problems for the family of the deceased soldier.

On day Roman soldiers devised a plan which was aimed at assisting the families of unfortunate fellow soldiers. After every pay day — soldiers were paid after each successful looting — they would put part of their respective earnings into a collective fund. Whenever a soldier was killed, the fund would provide enough money to cover both funeral expenses, and a living allowance for the surviving family. The ancient Romans called their method of compensation a "burial club". Today we call it life insurance.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	2♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — two of hearts.

Some of the very best plays in bridge occur only rarely. The chief reason is that the proper setting for them seldom arises. Consider this deal where West leads a heart against three notrump. East wins with the ace and, unless he is exceptionally alert at this stage, declarer winds up making the contract.

East's proper play at trick two is the king of spades! If East makes this play, South eventually goes down against proper defense. Declarer scores two spade tricks, one heart, three diamonds and two clubs — but no more.

But if East returns a heart at trick two, which seems to be the perfectly normal thing to do, declarer easily makes the contract. He wins the heart return with the king and establishes dummy's clubs.

There are compelling reasons for East to shift to the king of spades. It is not difficult to judge from the bidding that declarer must have almost every high card not in sight, and that he will almost surely make nine tricks if he is allowed to take full advantage of dummy's clubs.

If declarer refuses to take the king of spades, East returns a heart. The contract is then certain to fail, assuming best defense by East-West.

This willingness to sacrifice a spade trick in order to kill a crucial entry to dummy is usually referred to as the Merrimac Coup and it is also sometimes called a Deschapelles Coup. Whatever it's called, it's a mighty fine play to make.

Elegant lanterns made from tin cans

Making these elegant lanterns is inexpensive, fun and it sells! Mother Earth reader Wanda Cornelius tells how Barney Munnerlyn of Little Rock, Arkansas invented them.

The idea for Munnerlyn's lanterns came accidentally. One day, as he welded two butterfly wings together, he used his torch to carve his name in the side of a tin can. That simple act started him thinking: If he could carve out his name, then he could cut designs in the containers as well.

Munnerlyn produced tin butterflies first, but decided to make something out of whole cans, these elegant lanterns were the result.

These decorations have been such a success that Munnerlyn now travels 12 months of the year to demonstrate his work at art and craft fairs all over the country. Between shows, Munnerlyn returns to Little Rock to replenish his supplies and answer mail requests for the lanterns, which are priced between $3 and $7.50.

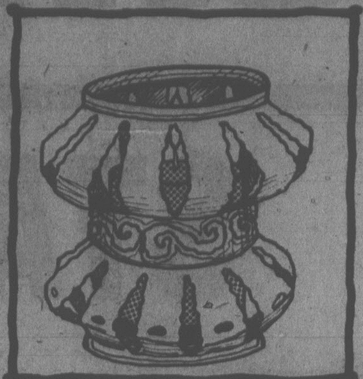
These attractive tin lanterns don't require much equipment to make. You'll need an acetylene torch and a steady hand, an empty can (anything from a soup can to a No. 10 size will do), some galvanized clothesline wire, a pair of pliers, a wire brush, goggles to protect your eyes, and a flameproof surface to put under the can while you work.

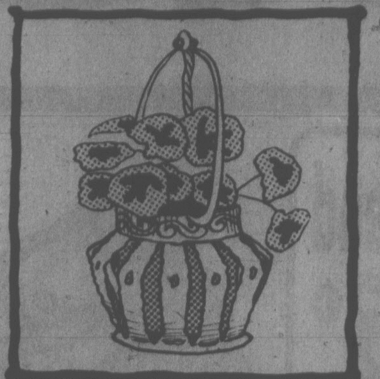
The first step is to light the torch and get the flame down to a pencil-lead size. Then, using about ¾-inch of space on the small cans and a little more than 1 inch on the larger, burn out a scroll-like design around the edges of the top and bottom rims.

Next, cut some evenly spaced, vertical lines around the centre of the can to within ¼-inch of your scrolled borders. On taller models, you may want to break the vertical lines into two sections and leave a narrow (decorated or solid) strip in the middle of the can. Either way, it's best to go over the cuts to be sure you haven't missed any spots.

After the can is cool to the touch, rub it diligently with a wire brush to get rid of the small pieces of loose metal and any paint that might have been on the original container. Or, if you're experienced in using your torch, you can increase the size of the flame, move far enough away so it doesn't cut the container, and simply burn the paint off.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®
...it tells you how





Once the can has its "pewter" finish, work from the inside and push out the strips with your fingers until the desired height is reached. Then, put the can on a hard surface, push down to make it level, attach the wire handle and you have a delightful lantern that can hold a candle, flower arrangement or potted plant.

For young widows

MONTREAL (CP) — Ellen Silverstone was only 25 when her husband died.

Her family and friends rallied to assist her through the initial numbing period. With their aid she got through the time of organizing her day-to-day activities, arranging legal papers and money matters.

Now two years later, Silverstone finds the need to communicate with other young widows — to talk over their common situation, to deal with feelings, depressions and help perhaps other young widows through the rough times that no one dreams about until they happen.

Silverstone was right about one thing — her problems are not unique.

It was the plight of such people as her that produced a new program, Widow to Widow, developed by the Young Men's-Young Women's Hebrew Association.

"All sorts of organizations exist for the older widow," Silverstone said in an interview, "but I couldn't locate any that could help me deal with certain problems that I'm sure aren't unique to me."

Most widows of 55, for example, aren't faced with pre-schoolers asking every man that enters the house if he's going to be their new daddy, she said.

Silverstone knew of other groups such as One-Parent Families, which offer a lot for widows with children in the line of family-oriented activities.

However, some of the single parents in these groups are divorced, and widows cannot always relate to their situation.

For example, a divorced person may need advice on how to share with a former spouse the responsibility for a child.

But the young widow knows that she has total responsibility.

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

5. 'Substitute and Save Part II'

Canada's Food Guide recommends two servings of meat or alternatives every day. With prices of meat climbing, smart Inflation Fighters are checking Safeway's weekly food ads for the meat specials, the best buys in beef, poultry, pork or fish.

You can substitute cheaper cuts and make better use of the wide variety of meats at Safeway. Also, eggs, cheese and milk are good meat alternatives. Look for our money-saving recipes at Safeway to help with meal planning ideas.

Remember, substitute if there is a saving. You'll enjoy trying new foods and cut food costs at the same time.

Next week's Inflation Fighting Idea:
"WHAT COST CONVENIENCE?"

together, we can be INFLATION FIGHTERS!

CITY WATCHDOG RICHARDS Report #109 Congratulations to those Police Forces who participated in the setting up and staffing of a very interesting display booth at the Jaycee Fair. Your City's Watchdog has noted that over three million dollars has been allocated in the City's 1979 budget to pay just the salaries of the Victoria City Police Force. Congratulations to Alderman McElroy for attempting to see that car owners who park on Pay Parking lots are protected from having their cars towed away prematurely, especially on lots that do not have ticket dispensers with time clocks. If you wish information regarding City Matters, please continue phoning 383-6259, Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards or write PO Box 154. Seen-in-Passing: Museum train at the CNR Point Ellice yards on May 19th through 21st. Postscript: Your City's Watchdog is looking for a change of government at Ottawa after Tuesday, May 22nd. Vote as you Please, but Please Vote. PPS A Very Happy Eighty-Seventh Birthday to Mother, who was born in Victoria May 24th 1892.

"WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERE'S ONE LAST SHOT"

This was one of the headlines on the front page of the Victoria Times May 15th 1979.

The story dealt with the amazing way of being seen and heard in living colour, by your loved ones after your demise. A clever lawyer offered to video tape the making and signing of your Will, and thus enabling you to express "Your true feelings and thoughts" to your loved ones, relatives and friends over closed circuit TV.

The Miami-based firm offered this service for $125 and not to be outdone by our American counterpart-Victoria Total Video will offer the same service in conjunction with your lawyer for the low price of $99 (Canadian Funds).

So don't be caught dead in your tracks... Call

VICTORIA TOTAL VIDIO
382-6546 or 384-9940 TODAY
IMPORTANT...

The Video version does not substitute for a written will required by B.C. Provincial Law but is a way of relaying personal and confidential information through a dramatic and convincing medium.

ATTENTION

Actors, actresses, singers, musical groups, models, dancers, do you fall into one of the above arts. How do you know... Victoria total video may have the answer. We will, on appointment provide you with unlimited hours of video taping in living colour with dynamic audio reproduction. We will tape your performance in the studio of your choice or in the privacy of your own home with our completely portable video equipment. You can then view (within seconds) your artistic achievements. Call:

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Grant Plan For Saanich

The proposed Saanich Cultural Centre and Horticultural Pavilion was been given a $75,000 evaluation grant by the provincial government.

But the grant is conditional on cabinet's approving a request for 110 acres of public lands adjacent to Camosun College's Interurban campus as a site for the complex.

Saanich-The Islands MLA Hugh Curtis was unavailable for comment on whether the funds for the project would come from the lottery fund or from the budget of the provincial secretary's department.

Vancouver architect Arthur Erickson has already been commissioned to design the centre.

The concept includes the construction of a large multi-purpose exhibition hall and support facilities adjoining demonstration gardens, an arboretum and horticultural research facilities.

A 5,000-square-foot solar-powered greenhouse is planned adjacent to the centre.

Salmon angling advice

A two-hour seminar to help anglers improve their catches of salmon will be held at the provincial museum's Newcombe Auditorium June 5 and 6 at 8 p.m.

Charlie White, author of seven books on sports fishing, will show some unique underwater films of fish striking lures, plus slow motion sequences to analyse strike behavior.

Tickets at $5 each are available from Capital Iron, Royal Coachman Tackle, Robinson's Sporting Goods, Harvey's Sporting Goods in Sidney, the Brentwood Inn, Brentwood Hardware, Alexander Sporting Goods in Sooke and Hall's Boathouse.

Too drunk to Steal —court

MONTREAL (CP) — It wasn't really theft when a man who downed 25 bottles of beer in a drinking contest with a friend made off afterwards with a $5,000 car, the Quebec Court of Appeal ruled Justices G. R. Owen, Rodolphe Pare and Antonio Lamer overturned a theft conviction against Raoul Cloutier, ruling he should not have been convicted because he was too drunk to deliberately commit a crime.

Cloutier was arrested in April, 1977, after the car he had taken smashed into several other cars and injured some of the occupants. When he was arrested, 4½ hours after the drinking bout, Cloutier couldn't stand up, witnesses said.

SMASH goes the glass in a side door window at San Francisco city hall at the height of overnight demonstration in which 5,000 angry citizens stormed to the streets following the Dan White verdict. Acute vision problems focus of Lidster clinic

A tiny clinic that will be a boon to persons with severe vision problems has opened on the third floor of Victoria General Hospital.

Named in honor of Norman Lidster, a Victoria writer whose struggles overcoming blindness and arthritis were an inspiration to his many friends, the clinic offers a wide range of low vision aids and equipment.

Dr. Jack Matvenko, director of the clinic, said the tools will be used by Victoria opthalmologists for display and testing purposes for their patients.

The equipment includes binoculars, magnifiers, special glasses, a "talking" adding machine, an Opticon or device that translates printed material into a raised pattern for the totally blind, and several models of the Visualtek, a California-produced closed-circuit television system that greatly magnifies print.

Matvenko said no opthalmologist's office could afford all of the equipment, valued at $19,000, which is why the central clinic was established.

Patients will be able to experiment with the different kinds of aids and learn how to use them before selecting one to buy.

The idea of the clinic was first proposed by the Empress Lions Club in memory of Lidster who died in 1977 at the age of 57.

The club raised $11,066 and the provincial health ministry gave $10,000.

Lidster's sisters Freda Springate and Dorothea Lock cut the ribbon to open the clinic at a special ceremony at the hospital Friday afternoon.

Grant approved

The proposed Saanich Cultural Centre and Horticultural Pavilion has been given a $75,000 evaluation grant by the provincial government.

But the grant is conditional on cabinet approving a request for 110 acres of public lands adjacent to Camosun College's Interurban campus as a site for the centre.

The concept includes the construction of a large multi-purpose exhibition hall and support facilities adjoining demonstration gardens, an arboretum and horticultural research facilities.

Sun's ban of gay ads upheld by top court

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that newspapers in British Columbia have the right to refuse to publish material which runs contrary to their views.

In a 6-to-3 decision the high court rejected an appeal by the Gay Alliance Towards Equality that the Vancouver Sun broke provincial human rights legislation by refusing to publish a classified advertisement dealing with homosexuality.

The dispute began in October, 1974, when the Sun turned down an ad promoting the thesis that homosexuality is a valid and legitimate form of human sexual expression and is in no way harmful to society or the individual.

In rejecting the ad, the Sun said it is the newspaper's policy to avoid advertising material dealing with homosexuals because it is offensive to public decency and would be offensive to some of its readers. The Sun also said it has a duty to protect the morals of the community it served.

The Alliance then complained to the B.C. Human Rights Commission that the rejection denied them services normally available to the general public and was a form of discrimination.

The board agreed with the complaint but the B.C. Court of Appeal ruled against the Alliance.

Mr. Justice Ronald Martland, writing the judgment for the court majority, said the provincial legislation's purpose is to prevent discrimination against individuals or groups in such matters as accommodation in hotels or motels and in other matters such as restaurants, bars, taverns, service stations and public transportation.

Classified advertising in newspapers was another issue.

While the Sun's advertising columns were made available at a price to the general public, it reserved the right to edit, revise, classify or reject an advertisement said Judge Martland.

He said the law recognized the freedom of the press to propagate its views and ideas on any issue and to select the material which it published.

"As a corollary to that, a newspaper also has the right to refuse to publish material which runs contrary to the views which it publishes," said Mr. Justice Martland.

Religious newspapers do not have to publish ads advocating atheistic doctrines and a newspaper supporting certain political views does not have to publish ads advancing contrary views, he said.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, who along with Mr. Justices Brian Dickson and Willard Estey would have upheld the Alliance, said the human rights board had found that the Sun has no reasonable cause to reject the ad. He could find no error in that finding.

"I would only add in concluding that I do not think a newspaper or any other institution or business providing a service to the public, can insulate itself from human rights legislation by relying upon honest bias or upon a statement of policy which reserves to the proprietor the right to decide whom he shall serve."

Why plants fail to bloom

jack beastall

Why do plants produce flowers? If we can find an answer to that question it might be possible to determine why flowering plants fail to bloom in the home garden.

The gardener will report the shrub was in full bloom when purchased, failed to bloom the next year, is now three times as large and not blooming although it has been well watered and fertilized.

The scarcity of flowers the second year is a natural reaction to being moved to a new environment. When a plant is set out in a garden its energy is used to make new roots and extending the present root system.

Since the plant was doing well and increasing in size, why did it fail to flower the third year?

At this point we must remember the production of flowers is not to give pleasure to the gardener. Flowers are part of the process for seed production, and the plant is interested in producing seed for the continuation of the species.

Walking along a dirt road we see dandelions growing in the gravel along the edges. These are small plants with a few leaves only three to four inches long, but producing six to ten flowers at one time.

If one of these plants is carefully lifted without damaging the tap root and planted in the garden it will cease to flower and put all its energy into making foliage. By fall the plant will have leaves eight to twelve inches in length, but still no flowers.

This shows that a precarious existence causes the plant to put all its energy into seed production, taking the chance that some of the vast amount of seed will be carried by birds, animals and man to better pastures where the species may continue.

The dandelion we transferred to the garden finds all its needs immediately available. It can afford to spend its new-found energy in making a large plant because there is ample nourishment in the soil and little chance its existence will suddenly terminate.

This relationship between seed production and poor soil is well known to all who have operated seed farms. A seedsman never forces unnecessary growth with fertilizer and excess watering because the flowers needed for a good seed crop will be sacrificed in favor of lush green growth.

When the newly purchased plant does not respond with masses of flowers the second year the home gardener resorts to heavy feeding which produces an excess of green growth at the expense of flowers. The green growth will continue as long as the plant can find all the nutrients its needs. Since living is not precarious, seed production is not essential at the moment.

We have this condition with bedding annuals and geraniums. Set out in a soil rich in fertilizer salts they make masses of growth during summer. As the air temperature decreases in the fall and the end of their life draws near, a few flowers appear.

In an exceptionally good fall lasting well into October we receive reports of wonderful displays of annuals and geraniums that bore no flowers at their usual blooming period.

While it is essential our flowering plants have sufficient food and water for normal growth, our desire for masses of bigger and better flowers leads us to defeat the plant's natural instincts.

When we realize why plants make flowers, and why a newly acquired permanent plant may not bloom the second year after planting, we are less likely to create conditions that will prevent it from flowering in the third year.

Computers 'open to abuse'

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Alan MacDonald balks at giving anybody his social insurance number, although it's routinely requested for cheques, credit-card applications and a host of other daily transactions.

MacDonald, 36, incoming president of the Canadian Association for Information Science (CAIS), says "the use of that simple (social insurance) number in so many files does make tremendous economic sense."

"But the social price we must pay is not worth it," the director of libraries at the University of Calgary said in an interview following the association's recent annual conference.

"It's a key to so many other files."

MacDonald said breaching the security codes of any computer system isn't hard if a person knows how to do it.

The potential for computer burglary is one aspect of the information and computer revolution that worries MacDonald, although he's enthusiastic about what computers can do.

MacDonald said his association must consider the implications of the social changes coming with office automation, data banks and home television systems linked to central information computers.

"The CAIS provides the neutral ground . . . where the technological, economic and sociological implications can be dealt with."

He said the information industry has eagerly awaited the transition to centralized electronic data and media.

One television screen in a home, linked to a central data base and other TVs, could serve as an entertainment, communication and calculating device.

But such a centralized system has enormous potential for abuse.

"If somebody wants to censor a book he's going to have to do it to thousands of copies. But if somebody wants to censor a national newscast only one button has to be pushed."

He is concerned because information will be taken out of the hands of highly skilled intermediaries and citizens will have direct interaction with the system.

"Who will decide what gets on the system?

"Until now information specialists like librarians have been like taxi drivers who have ferried us to information. Now, I hope, they will become like driving instructors.

"Our society is information illiterate. The average lawyer, doctor or educator operates with a rudimentary knowledge of information science."

MacDonald said the librarian and information specialist will survive the revolution because the government or public library will be one of the few neutral, uncommercialized institutions dispensing data. "It's a function that must be preserved."

He said the federal government must take responsibility for the effects of computer technology and the association is aiming to make it aware of the implications.

MacDonald said if the government ignores the information issue and lets foreign-held companies dominate the scene then all of Canada will lose.

He said Ottawa has been slow to develop a national information policy. Federal taxation policy was out of step with an industry that includes newspapers, wire services, radio, television, libraries and computer hardware and software companies. Development of the actual computer hardware is tax deductible but software, or programming development, is not.

Night only charters at Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Most international charter flights will be landing after midnight at Calgary International Airport after June 1 because of congestion in the airport's customs facilities.

A Canadian customs spokesman said passengers arriving in Edmonton will not have to worry about facing a similar fate because traffic at Edmonton International Airport is less than at Calgary.

Fran Saluk, manager of international traffic for the customs branch, said the layout of Calgary airport customs facilities, the most modern in Canada, is outdated after 18 months of use. It takes up to 90 minutes to process passengers through the facilities.

Charters have the lowest priority and passengers have waited an hour or two in Calgary in aircraft before being accepted for customs processing.

Pop bottle warning issued

TORONTO (CP) — The federal product safety branch said Friday most 1.5-litre pop bottles can explode simply by falling over on a hard surface.

The bottles contain so much gas pressure that a slight impact can cause them to explode, sending glass flying.

"Even if the pop bottle is just tilted over on the kitchen floor it can burst," said James Black, head of the branch.

Tests showed that some 1.5-litre bottles, such as the Coca-Cola bottle, do not explode. The Coke bottle is of a different design than most of the large bottles that contain Pepsi-Cola, Seven-Up or Canada Dry. Most of these bottles exploded on the first test.

Black urges consumers to handle the bottles carefully, keep them away from children and lay them on their sides so they can't be tipped over.

CN Rail's earnings up $17M over 1978

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways Monday reported first-quarter consolidated net earnings of $22.3 million, an increase of $17.1 million over the same period last year.

A company statement said the improvement in earnings for CN Rail, which increased income by $9 million over the first quarter of 1978, stemmed from higher traffic volume, rate increases, cost savings and higher exchange rates on U.S. currency.

The company said the increases were partially offset by higher wage and pension costs and increased expenses.

Other Canadian National operations showing increases in income were CN Telecommunications, CN Trucking, CN Passenger and CN Hotels.

Income of CN's United States subsidiary, Grand Trunk Corp., was down $888,000 from the first quarter of 1978 at $2.3 million.

Another $10,000 sought for study

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

A commission set up by Greater Victoria school board to conduct a district-wide education study has asked for a $10,000 budget increase and honorariums for each member.

The requests will be examined by trustees Wednesday during a planning committee meeting.

Commission chairman Bernard Gillie said today the extra funds are needed to hire outside research experts.

The board's original plan that district administrative people conduct the research is unrealistic because it means each department must come up with the extra resources out of its own budgets, he said.

The request for honorariums is "quite reasonable" in view of the amount of work the commission members are doing.

They meet one or two evenings a week and occasionally on Saturday, Gillie said.

Beginning May 30 public hearings will be held weekly in schools around the district. The first in the series of five hearings takes place at Hampton school.

The commission has seven members including Gillie, who was allotted a $15,000 salary. The other members — representing students, teachers, nonteaching staff, administration, parents and the community — were not to receive remuneration.

As far as the honorariums are concerned, no amount has been stipulated, Gillie said.

He said the commission is assuming the study will be an 18-month job in spite of the fact the board has asked for the report in October.

Gillie said he accepted the position on the understanding only an interim report would be ready by October.

It's up to the board to decide if it wants the study to continue, he said.

The circumstances are not ideal, Gillie said, because most of the commission's work must be conducted while school is in session and will have to be suspended over the summer.

Quake secrets probed

Earthquake hunters from the Pacific Geoscience Centre go to the Queen Charlotte Islands next month to record movement of the earth's mantle in the cradle of Canada's worst quakes.

The Queen Charlotte fault zone, beyond the edge of the continental shelf, for the first time will have sensitive instruments located 2,000-3,000 metres deep on the ocean floor.

The devices will be installed by scientists working from the research vessel Endeavor.

This zone is the birthplace of the most severe earthquakes and is usually active even though shocks may not be strong enough to be experienced on shore.

Part of the measurement program will include firing subsurface explosive charges from the ship in a line crossing the instrument positions, and making a continuous seismographic profile of the ocean floor by means of compressed air bursts.

Earthquake research is one of the principal roles of the Geoscience Centre, part of the federal Institute of Ocean Sciences complex at Patricia Bay.

Widening session set

A special Oak Bay council meeting will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. to consider a proposal for widening Monterey between Brighton and McNeil.

Two petitions containing 65 names and about 30 letters opposed to the widening proposal will be considered at the meeting.

The project would mean much of the existing road base would have to be torn up in the 1000 and 1100-blocks on Monterey.
